Summoned Before the Police Board Attracts Attention of Manchester Officials

WORCESTER, May 7.—With their first class common victualers' liquor license in force less than a week, John W. Sheridan and Peter Eberhardt of 34 Southbridge street were notified yesterday afternoon to appear before the license commissioners in city hall Tuesday, May 10, at 2 o'clock to show cause why the license for which they paid $1500 last Saturday should not be revoked.

The summons was served on the firm as the result of a complaint made against the place by Chief of Police David A. Matthews, that he has evidence to show that the terms of the license were broken by the licensees. He declined to make public the nature of his charge until he presents his evidence to the commissioners, but his complaint alleges that the offense was committed on the night of May 4.

LONDON, May 7.—King Edward VII died at 11.45 last night after an illness of less than a week.

The late king's eldest son, George, the prince of Wales, became king by inheritance on the death of his father. He will take the oath of office before the privy council, when it can be convened.

Son of Edward VII
 George Frederick Ernest Albert, the new king of England, second son of King Edward VII, became heir apparent to the English throne on the death of Queen Victoria, the eldest son having died.

As a youth he was known as Prince George of Wales.

George III was born at Norfolk house, St. James square, in 1738; Prince George of Wales first saw the light within almost a star's throw of the same place, at Marlborough house, in 1865. As a boy he presented in nearly every respect a marked contrast to his elder brother, the late duke of Clarence, who was his senior by just 17 months.

In appearance the one was pale, pensive, retiring, but with a singular grace of manner and deportment that never afterward forsook him; the other was ruddy of countenance, full of brightness and brusque vivacity. The features of the elder were finely cut, in close resemblance to those of his father at the same early age.

Chum of Brother
 Prince George, on the other hand, bore a striking likeness to the princess of Wales's sister, the Princess Dagmar, the empress of Russia, not only in the general form and cast of countenance, but also in detail of feature and expression.

For the first 15 years of his life he was the inseparable companion of his brother; and probably there have rarely, if ever, been two brothers that were more attached to each other than these two. Each seemed to find in the other the complement of his own individual characteristics.

There is no doubt that the quick liveliness of Prince George acted as a constant and welcome stimulus both in work and play hours to the more languid temperament of his brother, while that brother's quiet steadiness often served as a counterpoise to the younger's impulsive decisiveness.

Enter Navy Together
 The brothers entered the navy together as cadets on the 5th of June, 1877. The probation limit of age within which boys must enter is 12 years on the one side and 18½ years on the other. Prince George was within three days of the maximum and Prince George had only passed the minimum by two days. He was probably the youngest cadet that ever joined the Britannia.

The late Prof. Drew of King's college, London (whose experience of boys and young men was perhaps as large as any teacher's), had previously superintended the mathematical instruction of the brothers and often expressed himself as much struck by Prince George's ability and intelligence, and regretted that he would not be able

Mr. Welch did not see or hear anything until too late he looked into the glare of the headlights of the auto. The driver helped him into his house which was nearby and later sent a doctor to attend him. At the time of going to press he was resting comfortably.

IN POLICE COURT THE STATE TAX

Several Offenders Sentenced by Promises to be the Largest in Judge Hadley Today History of State

William F. Higgins, who, according to Probation Officer Slattery, was an exemplary young man up to about a year and a half ago when he started to drink, was this morning sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory at Concord after being found guilty of stealing two watches, two plus and $10 in money from Mrs. Mary Smith of 371 Central street and the fraudulent conveyance of mortgaged property belonging to the Bentley Jewelry Co., Joseph F. Loughran appeared for the defendant. Lawyer Rogers represented the Bentley Jewelry Co. and Deputy Downey conducted the prosecution for the government.

According to the testimony offered Higgins had been leading company with the daughter of Mrs. Smith and was living at the Smith house in Central street. Mrs. Smith keeping a few lodgers. It is alleged that Higgins' presence was obnoxious at times and after being ordered out of the house several months ago was later allowed to return, but his actions in the house caused Mrs. Smith to order him out of the house again several weeks ago.

Later it is alleged that he came to the house and offered to sell a lady's gold watch to Mrs. Smith. He said that he was hard up and wanted some money and she gave him $10 for it. It is claimed that Higgins purchased the watch on the installment plan, having paid $1 down, promising to pay the remainder in weekly payments.

When Higgins was ordered out of the house he retained a key to one of the doors and it is alleged that while Mrs. Smith and her daughter were out of the house one day last week he entered by aid of the key and besides taking the watch which he had sold to Mrs. Smith, took another watch and $10 in money.

Mrs. Mary Smith, the first witness, testified that she kept several lodgers in the house and worked every day in the mill. After explaining how Higgins had roomed at her house and that she had ordered him out because of his actions she told of his coming to her and offering the watch for sale. She said that she did not really care for the watch but in order to help out the young man gave him the money. She then turned the watch over to her daughter to put in a safe place. She did not see the watch again until she saw it at the police station. She said that she had $10 in a bureau drawer which she was going to pay an insurance man, but when she went to look for it it was gone.

Annie Smith, a daughter of the first witness, identified a watch offered her by Deputy Downey as the one purchased by her mother and said that she had placed it in a box in a photograph cabinet. There was also missing a gold watch belonging to her which she had placed in a trunk.

Joseph Hackett, a witness who arrested Higgins, said that in searching the defendant he found a key which fitted one of the doors of the Smith house in his possession. Witness said that Higgins had said that the watch had not been on his possession since he got it from the jewelry company. Neither Miss Smith's watch nor the money was found.

Probation Officer Slattery when consulted by the court said that up to a year and a half ago Higgins was an exemplary young man, but about that time he took to drinking, refused to work and lived as best he could.

No defense was offered. Higgins was found guilty and sentenced to the reformatory at Concord. He appeared and was held under $600 bonds for the superior court.

Battling Nelson in House

Battling Nelson, the ex-lightweight pugilist champion, was a guest of Speaker Walker during the debate on the first matter discussed yesterday, the bill providing for a close season on gray squirrels from Dec. 1 to the Oct. 15 following. Mr. Oliver of Athol offered an amendment to have the close season begin Nov. 15 and to prohibit the killing of more than 10 squirrels by any person in a single season.

Mr. Beat of Rockland offered an amendment to provide a permanent close season.

The Beat amendment was defeated and the Oliver amendment adopted, and the bill ordered to a third reading.

A motion of Representative C. L. Carr of Boston to substitute for an adverse report a bill requiring the preservation of the Blue Hills reservation in a natural condition was lost on a rising vote, 10 to 40.

The committee on ways and means reported ought not to pass on resolves appropriating $25,000 for the establishment of a fish hatchery and $10,000 for the establishment of a farm for the propagation of game birds and animals.

Representative Saunders of Clinton presented his own petition for legislation to authorize the county of Worcester to purchase additional land for a trout stream.

Without debate, the house accepted the adverse report of the committee on mercantile affairs on the petition of Representative Dean of Wakefield for legislation to limit charges for telephone service. Mr. Dean gave notice yesterday afternoon that he would move to substitute a bill for the adverse report, but failed to do so.

Refused to Come to Court

Joseph Hackett, a young man who was arrested yesterday on a warrant charging him with assault and battery on a foreign resident last Saturday night at the corner of Charles and Central streets, appeared in court, pleaded not guilty to the charge and asked that his case be continued till next Monday. Counsel for the government said that he would be busy on Monday and the case was continued till Tuesday.

In regarding the witnesses it was found that one of the witnesses who had been summoned had failed to appear in an appearance and Warrant Officer Frank Goodwin explained to the court that when he served the summons on the man yesterday the latter said he would not go into court and the court could go to a hot climate if it didn't like the manner in which he acted. Judge Hadley immediately issued a warrant issued for the man's arrest, and the chances are that he will appear in court before Tuesday morning.

One alleged sale they said, took place back of Sawyer's block on Central street, and the other near the grocery store of Comins & Proulx on Franklin street, when Dargle is employed as clerk. Dargle is 19 years old and was born in Franklin. In his defence he denied absolutely ever having seen either Colby or Roberts before and selling them liquor. FOR A SANER FOURTH.

Already in a great many cities throughout the country arrangements are being made for the celebration of Independence day. Here in Lowell we are not likely to have any official celebration, but in spite of this the day will be observed in much the usual way.

For some years past the press and the police authorities throughout the country have been endeavoring to bring about a more sane observance of the day, to eliminate the use of explosives and every other feature that is dangerous. An effort is also being made to suppress the nerve-racking noise, but this would largely be remedied by the prohibition of firecrackers and toy pistols. The young people will insist upon the use of fishbombs, cowbells, torpedoes and fire crackers, unless met with firmness by the police.

The problem is one involving much difficulty, and unless the people generally are educated to the enormity of the harm done throughout the entire country as a result of accidents, they are not likely to respond to any great extent to the movement for reform. Strict police regulations are necessary as the first step and a few arrests or prosecutions in each city would serve to convince the people that the police are sincere. There is no good purpose served by allowing boys to blow their own heads off, to start fires or in other ways to give a lot of needless annoyance to the public in general. The Fourth can be fittingly observed in a thoroughly enjoyable and patriotic manner without descending to antics that would lead a stranger to believe that about half the population had suddenly become insane.

DEATH OF KING EDWARD OF ENGLAND.

The death of King Edward has spread a feeling of gloom over the entire British empire and throughout the entire world there is sympathy and sorrow for the loss of a sovereign who, during his reign, had proved himself to be a wise and conservative ruler, a friend of humanity, the promoter of peace and who sincerely desired and labored for the best interests of his people.

The United States especially has profound sympathy with the British nation in the loss of its popular sovereign.

King Edward during his comparatively short reign had given evidence of considerable ability as a statesman and a diplomat. He established friendly relations with Russia, France and the United States, where before there had been a feeling of distrust if not of real enmity. He also in a great measure improved the relations existing between his own country and Germany, two nations between which there seems to be a spirit of jealousy that is liable at any time to assume a very serious aspect.

The death of King Edward at this time will be deeply deplored by the liberal party and the people of Ireland, because they looked to him to settle the political controversy between the house of commons and the lords, a controversy upon the right solution of which so much depended for the democracy of the nation.

It is a well known fact that King Edward was in sympathy with the liberals and had been for years in favor of the principal reforms advocated by the liberal party, but in accordance with the custom of the reigning sovereign, he kept aloof from the political arena, taking no part in the controversy unless called upon to exercise the royal prerogative in the usual manner. It was generally believed that he would meet the demands of the prime minister to create a majority in the house of lords favorable to the curtailment of the powers of the upper house either by creating the necessary number of peers or by prevailing upon the lords to concur with the commons in passing the measure.

The question now in the minds of a great many people is, what effect King Edward's death will have upon the reform measures that are pending. This is a matter that cannot be answered at this time. The outside world has had little from which to judge the new king so far as his ability or political sympathies are concerned. His training was largely in the navy where he attained high honors on his merits. It must be remembered that his elder brother, Clarence, was educated and trained as the future king, but his death made George Frederick prince of Wales and heir to the throne to which by inheritance he has now acceded.

In matters of military training the new king is well equipped for whatever duties may come before him. But we are not so sure that he will prove equally competent to act with ability on matters of political moment or questions bearing upon the welfare and progress of the people. Still, he is comparatively a young man, he will have good advisers and the great responsibility coming so suddenly upon him may develop in him powers of statesmanship that may astonish the world.

A natural consequence of this plunging the nation in sorrow in the midst of a political crisis will be to cause a great deal of sympathy for the royal family and to counteract any opposition that might have existed against the aristocracy or even royalty itself. This will help to weaken the opposition that threatened the peers. For some months to come the patriotic spirit of the English people will be at high tension and there will be little probability of any move against the aristocracy which must in the long run be regarded as the chief remaining prop to royalty. After the lapse of some months, however, the tendency of public sentiment will be back to the conditions that prevailed before the king's death and the old problems of reforming the house of lords, radical changes in financial policies, and the granting of home rule to Ireland will again press themselves for consideration of parliament. They are among the problems that are likely to test the political sagacity of the new king.

King Edward a short time ago remarked that he was the last king who would sit undisturbed on the throne of England. He undoubtedly foresaw the growing strength of the British democracy and the demand for reform threatening the last remnants of feudalism in overthrowing landlord extortion, hereditary titles and ultimately perhaps royalty itself. This no doubt was the king's vision of the future and of what may ultimately fall to the lot of his successors on the throne, but how, when or by what means, none can venture to predict.

SEEN AND HEARD

It is not de rigueur in Yonkers, N. Y., to appear on the street in one's pajamas. Arthur G. Brown, of No. 20 Poplar street, very nearly forgot it early in the morning, when his mother-in-law, Mrs. J. Strum, aroused him with the news that a burglar was just leaving by the front gate. Brown looked through the open window and saw that Mrs. Strum's news was true. For an instant he thought of giving chase as he was but he caught himself just in time.

But when Brown reached for his trousers they were missing from their accustomed place. Likewise his coat and his shoes. The burglar was out down the street and Brown covered the distance between the bedside and the wardrobe in one bound. Thank Heaven, his Sunday clothes were in the same room with him!

Only the Sunday clothes weren't. Once more Brown looked from the open window and his worst fears were realized. The burglar had his Sunday clothes as well as his others; not even a waistcoat had been overlooked.

Then Brown called up the police. While they were on their way to the house Brown found that his watch was gone, and with it $10 in money. For the last time Brown looked from the window. The street was empty.

When the police arrived Brown wore an air of chagrin above his pajamas. Later added a smile over the fact, although it had been costly, he had lost nothing to offend the conventionalities.

The baby of the family went to New York to break ground for a fortune. He was old enough to vote yet he was the youngest of the family. Lowell in his estimation was a slow old town and he allowed the town was electrically enough in him to keep up with New York.

Young competition. By all accounts he is a long well and is living on the fat of the land despite the fact that a loving sister at home thought for a moment that he was existing on pea soup. To the first letter he wrote home he added a postscript. He used the letters "S" and the poor loving sister cried herself to sleep. That the letters stood for "pea soup" and that that was all poor baby brother could get to eat in a big city.

JOSEPHINE TO NAPOLEON
Rest for thou art weary, while thine eyelids close, the bird that loves, that loves the rose.
And warbles, and warbles o'er thy sweet, thy sweet repose.
For thou hast said such music flows From those fond lips as o'er thee flows.

The only calm Napoleon knows—
The only calm Napoleon knows—
My heart is troubled against my better will.
Strange fears arise as if of coming ill.
Wouldst thou, wouldst thou bid my trembling, trembling soul be still?

No more to breathe in these loved scenes!
No more to charm Napoleon's dreams! Grief breaks the heart of Josephine—
Grief breaks the heart of Josephine.

NAPOLEON TO JOSEPHINE
Chase from thy mind these idle fears, Wipe from thine eyes those pearly tears.
Napoleon will not from thee part. Napoleon will not break thy heart, My Josephine, my Josephine.

REFRAIN
Dearest than life itself to me, Companion of my destiny.
Thy only love I ever loved, The only tongue that ever moved.
My stubborn will, my Josephine, I loved thee when thy lovely face First charmed me with its pensive grace.

I loved thee when thy old clan claim His father's sword in thy sweet name, My Josephine, my Josephine.
They bade me cast my love aside. They bade me take another bride!
Napoleon lost his heart to thee, Napoleon never can be free From Josephine, sweet Josephine!

—Taken from N. Y. Times.
Two Coney Island waiters were talking about short changing.
"It's bad to take a raw chance," said one, "because you can never tell what will happen if you're caught. The best pickings I ever had I didn't take any chances on. It was last summer at the Seattle exposition. I was selling tickets at a 15-cent attraction. Every time a guy showed in a $2 bill for one or two tickets, I counted out carefully five or ten cents in silver too much. If he bought two tickets I lay out 80 cents in silver. Nine men out of ten would grab the change and beat it, thinking they had beat me out of a dime. They seldom remembered that I had a dollar more to give than they were in such a hurry to get away with my change."

"The tenth man, who didn't fall for the game, was generally honest enough to shove my dime back, so I seldom lost anything. I made $10 a day besides my pay, all without taking a chance."

Patrons of a hotel dining room stopped eating while a piping hot boiled potato of extraordinary size was carried across the room and set before a man seated at a centre table.
"Brought it himself, all the way from Oklahoma," said the manager. "He brought enough to last him all the time he is here. He keeps them in his room and sends one down just in time to have it cooked for dinner. Yes, they're good potatoes, but that isn't why he brought a sackful up from Oklahoma. It's in the potato business and he eats his own potatoes as an advertisement. A potato of that size carried across the room held up high at arm's length is going to attract attention anywhere. It makes folks ask questions and pretty soon the reputation of the hotel is made. There are other fellows as enterprising as this Oklahoma chap. Every year an apple grower from Oregon plays the same game. He brings samples of his best apples along and has them served in styles that are bound to make people look."

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

Four full shows will be given at the Opera House today, starting at 1.30, 3.30, 5.30, and 7.30, and what is proving to be the most laughing show of the current vaudeville season at the Opera House will be given at 7.30. "Night in the Club," Marlow and Plunkett as the teacher and deaf student, and W. J. Holmes in a rural monologue keep the audience in roars of laughter, while the dancing of Burns and Clifton is a big hit and one of the features of an excellent program. Tomorrow a concert will be given both afternoon and evening, and a new program will be offered which will include Litta, Perry & Gibson, W. J. Holmes, Katherine Howell and all new pictures. Performances will be given afternoon and evening, commencing at 1.30 and 5.30. Commencing Monday another of the big bills being offered at this theatre will be seen and one of the big things of the program will be Dare Devil Gregg, known as the cycle maniac in an unsational looping the loop act. Other big features will also be seen. Prices at the Opera House are five and ten cents, and the wonder is how so much can be given for the money.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

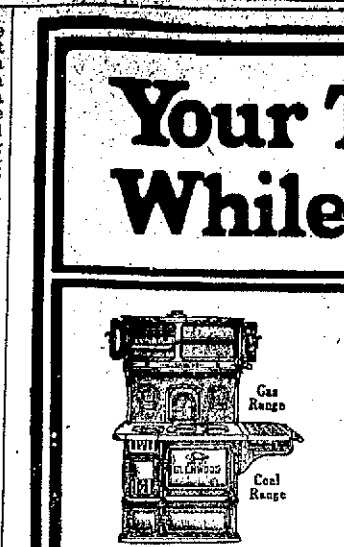

Today is the last chance to see Nelson and Milledge in their comedy sketch "Dance Pat In." Lovers of comedy should not miss it. Francis Wood is doing a fine rolling hoop act that cannot help but amuse the audience. Miss Claudia Resetto is making a hit singing "Tins Anybody Here Seen Kelly?" and travelogues of the different countries are shown. A continuous performance is given Saturday and Sunday. Admission 5 and 10 cents.

THEATRE VOYONS

Everyone who has seen "The Penitent of Florence" at the Theatre Voyons is cordially endorsing the claim of its makers, who say it is the best sentimental picture in months. The story is easily followed and it is told in a touching manner. The acting is well done and the staging exceptionally good. The biograph subject, "The Gold Seekers," is a clever mining story, one that holds the attention all of the time. "The Portrait" is a really laughable, bright and witty comedy, and one of the best of its kind. Sunday the concert of the best pictures and the cleverest songs will be given in the quality way that has given this house the lead all the time.

STAR THEATRE

A strong bill of motion pictures, accompanied by two popular illustrated songs, is being presented at the Star theatre, and for the admission of five cents, which also includes a seat, there is no better show in Lowell. "The Upsiding of the Ureca" is a classic Indian picture, historically correct, it is very thrilling. A biograph picture, "The Final Settlement," is intensely dramatic. There are several comic subjects. The show is "the biggest and best in Lowell."

EMPIRE THEATRE

hold the attention of the house in their black face comedy sketch and seem to be much appreciated. City Engineer Bowers declared that there is no better laid out section in the whole country than this one. To obtain the consent of land owners to similar development in all sections of the city is the work of this committee.

CHOIR FESTIVAL

COMMITTEE GRATEFUL FOR READY RESPONSE

The committees from the Middlesex Women's club and the College club, who are arranging the choir festival soon to take place, wish to express their thanks for the ready and hearty response to all the churches in the city to the call for co-operation in behalf of the playground movement. It is a matter of regret to the committees that for lack of room in Associate hall they could not accommodate the entire number of singers who are willing to take part in the program.

BAPTIST CHURCH

CALLS A. S. WOODWORTH AS ASSISTANT PASTOR

At a meeting of the corporation of the First Baptist church held last night, Mr. A. S. Among his duties will be that of teacher of the Baruch class.

BURNED BY POTASH

WINDFORD, May 7.—While Mrs. Alfred Lambert was absent from the kitchen a few minutes yesterday her 16-months old daughter, Laurence Lambert, crawled to a box containing potash and placed some in her mouth. The baby's cries brought the mother, who found the child writhing in pain. The baby's mouth and face were severely burned.

BILL HELD UP

Only one bill was held up by the committee on accounts at its meeting last evening. This is the bill from W. C. Underley for $161.16 against the department of lands and buildings for payment for schoolhouses. The bill was held up before. The committee believes it to be excessive.

FOR NEW STREETS

Board of Trade Committee Starts Plan

The board of trade committee recently appointed to consider the opportunities for developing new streets along lines which will redound to permanent benefit of the city, met here for the first time yesterday afternoon, in the rooms of the Old Lowell National bank.

The entire membership of the committee was present, including George Bowers, J. Harry Boardman, Arnold A. Byam, Herford N. Elliott, Robert F. Marden and John A. McKenna.

It was voted to meet again next Friday at the same place at 4 o'clock and it was voted to send invitations to a number of men who own large acreage in the Andover street section to meet with the committee and discuss the possibilities.

The Andover street section was taken up first and the need of new streets in this section was pointed out. Between the section, whose farther boundary is Wentworth avenue, and the city line is a very large territory which is now being developed and where the lines of new streets will have great importance relative to development in the far future when traffic will be much heavier between Lowell and North Tewksbury and Andover as well as Lawrence.

The committee desires to get the ideas of the land owners in the vicinity as a whole.

City Engineer Bowers called attention to West Centralville as the best laid out section of Lowell.

The streets are laid out so as to converge conveniently from all directions upon Alker street bridge. City Engineer Bowers declared that there is no better laid out section in the whole country than this one. To obtain the consent of land owners to similar development in all sections of the city is the work of this committee.

Oaklands District
That section of Rogers street from Neshmuth to Oaklands square was discussed and the need of widening the street appeared apparent to all. At the present time the street can be widened by the usual method, but it is long it will be built upon being widened. It increased a thousandfold when the need of widening is even more pressing.

The committee voted to report to the board of trade its determination to urge upon the city council the advisability of immediate action and commission Alderman Byam, a member of the committee, to seek the proper channels for obtaining favorable action.

Secretary McKenna was requested to write to the Boston authorities for a copy of the ordinance of that city, governing the laying out of new streets, the understanding being that Boston has a law requiring somewhat the same ideas as the committee has in mind. Before the committee completes its endeavors it is hoped that all sections of the city may become interested in the project and that a unified plan of development may be adopted.

The matter of widening Lawrence street and building a street and concrete bridge over the brook was discussed.

At the present time from Rogers street to the corner of Andrews street, Lawrence street is but 41 feet wide and there is a great deal of traffic passing over the street. It is contiguous to the U. S. Cartridge and the U. S. Hunting companies and the Stirling and Waterhead mills.

Paul Butler has indicated that he would be willing to give the land bordering on the street in order to have it widened. This would provide a 50 foot front on both sides of the bridge for some distance. The project would have in view the ultimate widening of Lawrence street for the whole of the 41 foot width.

The annual smoke talk of the Massachusetts Mohair Cricket club was held last night at the club rooms and the affair proved to be one of the most enjoyable ever held by the organization. President Thomas W. Cryer had full charge of the evening's festivities. The program included a selection, "The Old Brigade," by the Glee club; duet, "The Last Mile Stone," Messrs. Hild and Hyde; recitation, James Bar, "Alone," Mr. Hild; selection, "Comrade in Arms," by the Glee club; song, Mr. Hinton; song, Mr. Thomas; duet, Messrs. NIGHT EDITION

THE NEW KING

Was Proclaimed at 4 O'Clock
This Afternoon

LONDON, May 7.—The king is dead, King George V. was proclaimed this afternoon.

The privy councillors met at 4 o'clock to hear the imperial oath and immediately afterwards heralds announced the new accession.

In the meantime popular interest in the new ruler is overshadowed by universal grief at the death of King Edward VII.

The beloved monarch succumbed to pneumonia which followed a bronchial attack at Buckingham palace at fifteen minutes before last midnight in the 69th year of life and the tenth year of his reign.

The grief of the dowager queen at the death of her royal husband is pathetic. Since early morning she has been weeping and she the cheery, directing everything, personally placing the wealth of flowers that have been received and giving her directions with stately dignity but at the same time in tears, has been endeavoring to persuade to remain in her own room to take the rest of which she is so much in need.

The funeral arrangements are not yet announced but the expectation of court circles is that the body, after a day's lying in state in the palace chapel, nearly where he buried at Frogmore, nearby, where were buried the bodies of his father, mother and son. The burial will probably be delayed for ten days or more until the arrival of the foreign deputations. Towards noon

LONDON, May 7.—King Edward VII died at 11.45 last night after an illness of less than a week.

The late king's eldest son, George, the prince of Wales, became king by inheritance on the death of his father. He will take the oath of office before the privy council, when it can be convened.

Son of Edward VII
George Frederick Ernest Albert, the second son of King Edward VII, became heir apparent to the English throne on the death of Queen Victoria, the eldest son having died.
As a youth he was known as Prince George of Wales.
George III was born at Norfolk house, St. James square, in 1748; Prince George of Wales first saw the light within almost a stone's throw of the same place, at Marlborough house, in 1866. As a boy he presented in nearly every respect a marked contrast to his elder brother, the late duke of Clarence, who was his senior by just 17 months.

In appearance the one was pale, pensive, retiring, but with a singular grace of manner and deportment that never afterward forsook him; the other was ruddy of countenance, full of spirits, and of a frank, lively, cheerful disposition. The features of the elder were finely cut, in close resemblance to those of his father at the same early age.

but also in detail of feature and expression.

For the first 18 years of his life he was the inseparable companion of his brother, and probably they have rarely, if ever, been two brothers that were more attached to each other than these two. Each seemed to find in the other the complement of his own individual characteristics.

There is no doubt that the quick liveliness of Prince George acted as a constant and welcome stimulus both in work and play hours to the more lymphatic temperament of his brother. While that brother's quiet staidness often served as a counterpoise to the younger's impulsive decisiveness.

Enter Navy Together

The brothers entered the navy together as cadets on the 5th of June, 1877. The regulation limit of age within which boys must enter is 12 years on the one side and 12½ years on the other. Prince Eddy was within three days of the maximum and Prince George had only passed the minimum by two days; he was probably the youngest cadet that ever joined the Britannia.

The late Prof. Dew of King's college London (whose experience of boys and young men was perhaps as large as any teacher's), had previously superintended the mathematical instruction of the brothers and often expressed himself as much struck by Prince George's ability and intelligence, and regretted that he would not be able

TAX ABATEMENT

Asked for by Ex-Mayor
Matthews

BOSTON, May 7.—Nathan Matthews and Albert Matthews, yesterday filed petitions against the city of Boston in the superior court asking for the abatement of taxes on 30 parcels of property that they own as trustees.

The value of 28 parcels, with buildings, was fixed by the assessors at $233,600 and of two lots at $26,600, making a total of $304,100. The total taxes are $5017.65.

The petitioners allege the assessors' valuation of the various parcels is un-

Just and excessive and ask the court to fix the fair, reasonable value and direct the city to refund the taxes paid on the excess valuation.

They allege that they applied to the assessors for an abatement of the taxes, but their application was denied. The taxes in question are those imposed on the assessment made May 1, 1904.

Among the parcels whose valuation is regarded excessive are the two lots in the rear of Hotel Oxford which were the subject of controversy and publicity through the efforts of Ex-Councilman Goodwin who called attention to them from that time. The lots were exempted from taxation.

The other lots are located on Fairmount, Belvidere, Follen, St. Botolph and Dundee streets.

BALLINGER-PINCHOT CASE

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The cross-examination of Secretary Ballinger by Louis Brandeis was proceeding with but momentary renewals of the frequent clashes of yesterday before the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee this morning when there developed the most spectacular incident of the hearing.

Horace T. Jones, a special agent of the land office, who testified some time ago in support of Louis R. Glavis, arose in his place among the spectators and announced in a loud voice that he did not believe a statement made by Secretary Ballinger was true and that he desired that a witness be called to substantiate or deny what Ballinger said. The statement had to do with Jones' ability as an agent and was attributed by Secretary Ballinger to Special Agent Dixon.

When the commotion following Jones' interruption had subsided Senator Root demanded that the witness be admonished, that a repelation of his outburst would subject him to punishment for contempt.

"Mr. Jones will take notice and we will proceed," said the chairman. Secretary Ballinger said at no time had he questioned the integrity of Jones.

Brandeis next turned to remedial Alaskan legislation which Mr. Ballinger had recommended when he was land commissioner.

"I was not seeking to validate illegal or fraudulent claims," declared the secretary. "I was seeking to extend the area of claims. Any one who knows conditions in Alaska knows that it is utterly impossible to finance or operate a coal mine on places."

STRUCK BY AUTO THE MILK STRIKE

Joseph Welch Injured on Chelmsford Street

Joseph Welch, an elderly man residing at 512 Chelmsford street, was run into and knocked down by an automobile delivery car near the junction of Chelmsford and Plain streets shortly after nine o'clock last night.

The auto, which contained two women and a man, was coming through Chelmsford street at a moderate rate of speed. Mr. Welch was crossing the street when without warning the auto struck him knocking him down, both wheels passing over his left leg.

Mr. Welch did not see or hear anything until too late he looked into the glare of the headlights of the auto. The driver helped him into his house which was nearby and later sent a doctor to attend him. At the time of going to press he was resting comfortably.

LIQUOR DEALERS

Summoned Before the Police Board

WORCESTER, May 7.—With their first class common victualers' liquor license in force less than a week, John W. Sheridan and Peter Eberhardt of 212 Southbridge street were notified yesterday afternoon to appear before the license commissioners in city hall Tuesday, May 10, at 2 o'clock to show cause why the license for which they paid $1500 last Saturday should not be revoked.

The summons was served on the firm as the result of a complaint made against the place by Chief of Police David A. Matthews, that he has evidence to show that the terms of the license were broken by the licensees. He declined to make public the nature of his charge until he presents his evidence to the commissioners, but his complaint alleges that the offense was committed on the night of May 4.

MALDEN JUDGE

HAS INAUGURATED A GRADU- ATED FINE

BOSTON, May 7.—The graduated fine inaugurated by Judge Charles M. Bruce in the Malden district court went into effect yesterday when John J. Hurley of 309 Salem street, Lawrence, was the first victim and was assessed, $30 for overspeeding his automobile on the Middlesex Fells Parkway.

It was claimed Hurley was going thirty-five miles an hour, and Judge Bruce told the defendant he had announced for the past three weeks that he would have the speed laws on the parkway enforced.

"I guess you began to feel that I wouldn't do as I said," remarked the court. "But I am starting today to impose fines of $2 per mile in excess of the twenty-mile limit. If I find this is not sufficient, I will impose fines of $3 per mile."

Hurley appealed from the fine, but later settled the usual fine for overspeeding is $10.

DOCTOR COMMITTED SUICIDE

BETHEL, Me., May 7.—Dr. F. T. Brown of New York, said to be a celebrated surgeon and associate of Dr. McBurney who operated upon President McKinley, committed suicide by shooting today in a field near the railroad station here.

Dr. Brown has been here the past two weeks for his health and was accompanied by an attendant. Despondency had been caused by a nervous trouble and ill health and he had been acting strangely. Taking a revolver which he received by express last night without the knowledge of his attendant, he went to the field near Alder river and shot himself in the head. Dr. Brown was about 55 years old and has a wife and family in New York.

The members of the royal family began to arrive at Buckingham palace. King George who had been occupied throughout the morning with affairs of state arrived at luncheon time in company with Queen Mary. Throughout the morning there was a constant stream of callers, including members of the diplomatic corps. Several verses from personal friends of Edward were sent to the death chamber.

Before the palace a crowd watched the comings and goings until a sharp thunder and snow storm drove to cover all but a few stragglers who remained to see the changing of the guard, which ceremony was effected today without the accompaniment of a band of music. The dowager queen has received a telegram from Theodore Roosevelt expressing his sincere sympathy. The plans for the entertainment of Mr. Roosevelt here necessarily will be materially modified not to just what extent is not yet made known.

A special service in memory of King Edward was held at St. Paul's this afternoon and was almost national in character, despite the hurried preparations. The lord mayor and the corporation of London attended in state while all the departments of state, the navy and the army were represented. High officials in all ranks of society were in the congregation. The service was that used upon the occasion of Queen Victoria's death.

As the day unfolded the sentiment expressed in the familiar phrase, "The king is dead, long live the king," seemed to influence the crowd and early in the afternoon thousands who had remained for hours within the vicinity of Buckingham palace shifted in the streets adjoining the palace. From then on popular interest from the standpoint of the street, centered in the anticipated arrival of King George and the privy councillors and the ceremony of proclamation giving the empire a new king.

King George, Queen Mary and two of their sons, Prince Edward and Prince Albert, the former of whom is soon to become the prince of Wales, spent an hour at Buckingham palace. They are the only members of the family to have not seen Alexandra. All other members of the royal family have been received by the Princess Victoria.

It is announced that the court will move to Windsor castle next Thursday. The council met in the throne room at St. James' palace under the presidency of the Earl of Crawford, who officiated in the absence of the viceregent, the lord president of the council. The new monarch was given the title of King George V.

The king, who had driven over from Marlborough house, waited in a room adjoining the council chamber while the long formalities of the coronation were being carried out. With today's ceremony and in his 43rd year, the second son born to King Edward VII and Queen Alexandra, becomes the ruler of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British dominions beyond the seas, king defender of the faith, and emperor of India.

Official Proclamation
The text of the official proclamation follows:
"Whereas it has pleased Almighty God to call to his mercy our late sovereign, Edward VII, of blessed and glorious memory, by whose demise the imperial crown of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland is solely and rightfully come to the high and mighty Prince George Frederick Ernest Albert, therefore, the lords spiritual and temporal of this realm, being assisted with his late majesty's privy council with members of other principal gentlemen of quality, with the lord mayor, aldermen and citizens of London do now hereby with one voice, consent of tongue and heart to publish and proclaim that the high and mighty Prince George Frederick Ernest Albert is now by the death of our late sovereign of happy memory become our only lawful and rightful liege lord, George, by the grace of God, king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, defender of the faith, and emperor of India, to whom we do acknowledge all faith and constant affection, beseeching God, by whom all kings and queens do reign, to bless the royal Prince George, with long and happy years to reign over us."

ROOSEVELT ISSUES STATEMENT ON DEATH OF KING
STOCKHOLM, May 7.—Former President Roosevelt issued the following today: "I am deeply grieved and know that all Americans will be deeply grieved at the death of his majesty, King Edward VII."
"We feel most profound sympathy for the British people for their loss. We in America keenly appreciated King Edward's personality and good will toward us which he so frequently and so markedly showed and we are well aware of the devotion felt for him by his subjects throughout the British empire while all foreign nations have great abilities in the king a ruler whose judgment and his especially his tact, his sense of nature rendered him particularly fit to work for international peace and justice."

"Let me repeat that I am sure that all American people feel at this time the deepest and most sincere sympathy for his family and his nation."
"Mr. Roosevelt also sent a personal telegram to the dowager queen."

EXPRESSIONS OF SYMPATHY FROM THE DIPLOMATS
WASHINGTON, May 7.—King Edward's death called for numerous expressions of sympathy and appreciation of his ability as a ruler from various members of the diplomatic corps, cabinet, congressmen and prominent government officials here.

President Taft immediately called his condolences to Queen Alexandra, declaring therein his appreciation of those high qualities which made the life of the late king so potent an influence toward peace and justice among the nations.

Secretary of State Knox in a telegram to the American embassy at London conveyed to the British government the sympathy of the president, the government and the people of the United States and in speaking of the late king, "The people of the United States are sure to feel for their British kinsmen deep sympathy in the loss of their wise, tactful and kindly ruler, King Edward VII, had qualities which made his influence felt in many

PRIVY COUNCIL MEETING A BRILLIANT AFFAIR
LONDON, May 7.—The meeting of the privy council was a brilliant function. The king wore the uniform of an admiral and was surrounded by a large gathering of councillors all in full dress and wearing knee ribbons of their order. The lord mayor of the corporation was in his robes of office. The councillors having acquainted the king with the completion of the proclamation his majesty entered the council chamber and signed the proclamation after which he conferred in chief offices those who had held appointments under his father at the time of the king's death.

King George delivered a brief but earnest address. He exhibited deep emotion as he enounced his determination to endeavor under the guidance of God to maintain the high traditions of the British court and to fulfill to the best of his abilities the great trust reposed in him.

LOST IN A FOG

The Steamer Normandy Was on Her Maiden Voyage

ST. JOHNS, N. F., May 7.—Bound on her maiden voyage from London to the Great Lakes, the steamer Normandy, commanded by Captain Hawthorne, was lost in a dense fog near Cape Race. The Normandy in addition to a cargo of pig iron, carried a number of passengers, including 31 women, all of whom were saved.

The Normandy struck on Great Island near Bay Bulls, some 28 miles south of St. Johns, during a thick fog at midnight. An hour later the steamer had sunk in 25 fathoms of water, having backed off the shoal. Only a few details of the wreck had been received here up to noon. It is known, however, that after the first shock of striking the rocky reef off Great Island officers of the steamer quickly calmed the fears of the passengers and preserved admirable discipline among the crew. The steamer's boats were lowered in good order and all on board were safely landed at St. Mary's, the women receiving first attention.

GOVERNOR FORT

Denies Request for Extradition of J. Ogden Armour

TRENTON, N. J., May 7.—Gov. Fort today refused a request of Prosecutor Garven of Hudson county for a requisition on the governor of Illinois for the extradition of J. Ogden Armour, a director of the National Packing Co. who is under indictment in Hudson county with other officers and directors of packing companies, on a charge of conspiracy to unlawfully enhance the cost of meat through the creation of an artificial scarcity of the same.

Gov. Fort in refusing to grant the requisition gave out a long opinion in which he sets forth the reason for his refusal. The governor points out first of all that in order for extradition to be asked for it was necessary that the person whose extradition was desired be a fugitive from justice and further that it was essential that the accused person was in fact in the state of New Jersey at the time of the commission of the alleged offense.

The governor says the only evidence before him of the presence in New Jersey of Mr. Armour at or about the time of the commission of the alleged offense was his presence in Hoboken in March, 1908, to take passage from that city to Europe and again in June, 1909, upon his return from Europe. The governor adds that the proof before him is barren of any facts warranting an inference that Mr. Armour was in Hoboken for any other purpose than the taking of passage to Europe and returning thereafter.

Gov. Fort also says that the proof offered as to the presence of Mr. Armour in New Jersey does not coincide with the days set out in the indictment as the time of the commission of the alleged conspiracy.

There are other applications pending before Gov. Fort for the extradition of others connected with the meat packing companies in the west but when the hearing was sought by counsel for the packers the Armour case was selected as a test one and a hearing was given upon the case. Whether applications for extradition will now be pressed in the case of the other packers will depend upon Prosecutor Garven.

International affairs and this influence was always found on the side of peace and justice.

Secretary of the Navy Meyer said: "The sudden death of the king of England causes a great shock to the world. His diplomatic influence as ruler of a great empire has always been in the interest of peace and progress."

THE EPISCOPAL CHURCHES HOLD REQUIEM SERVICES
BOSTON, May 7.—In the numerous churches in New England where there are English colonies, the news of the passing of King Edward was received with undisguised sorrow. Many of the Episcopal churches in Boston and other cities will hold requiem and memorial services on the day of the temporary head of the Anglican church and on account of the close relationship of that body with the Episcopal church in this country it is customary to observe the death of the British ruler.

In an interview, Rev. Father Charles Neale, vicar of St. John's, superior of the English order of St. John the Evangelist in this country, said of King Edward:

"I remember one morning when I was a lad at school excitement prevailing everywhere and a great race to the station where we were to see and cheer our future king, King Albert Edward, prince of Wales. He was returning from his wedding trip to Windsor."

"I always felt that anything said against him in his younger days was unfair because he was the only man in England who could not get along without his father. He was a true son of his father and his father's memory was a model in family life and a sincere upholder of the church. This is shown in one of his last acts. When it was proposed that he should nominate a bishop of Lincoln, a dignitary of the church who has been conspicuous for his extreme vagueness of faith, the king said: 'No, I am defender of the faith.'"

Quite a number of Boston business houses, particularly those with English connections, will be draped in mourning for thirty days.

When King Edward as Baron Rosse was in Boston in 1894 he met Longfellow, Holmes, Emerson and other famous Bostonians. He called for home from Portland.

HOTEL KEEPERS

Will Not be Given 4th Class Licenses

The board of police this afternoon gave the local innholders leave to withdraw on their petition for the restoration of the fourth class liquor license. Several weeks ago the hotel keepers, through their counsel, William J. Root, petitioned the board to restore the 4th class license and a hearing was held. When the hotel licenses were granted and only a first class innholder was granted, it was a foregone conclusion that the board would refuse to grant the petition, but the board's decision was not given out until this afternoon.

THREE EVENTS AT YALE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 7.—In a sporting way Yale held today will be like a three day circus. On one part Yale and Princeton will play track and field games, on the diamond the Yale freshmen play the youngsters from Pennsylvania and after this game the Yale varsity will play the Phillips Andover team.

The quality of the men who represent the Blue in the track meet will give a line on Yale's chances in the dual games at Cambridge, next Saturday and in the intercollegiate later today. Last year at Princeton the meet was not distinguished until the last event, but usually Yale has an easy time and the forecast for today is a Yale win by a margin of 56 to 14.

Jan. 14, 1886, he was appointed to M. S. Thunderer on the Mediterra- a station, but as that ship was de- ed three months in dock at Malta repairs, he was temporarily trans- ed on June 2 to H. M. S. Dread- ght. Prince George received his ointment as one of that ship's ad- lieutenants Aug. 25, 1886.

he Duke of Edinburgh was now ad- commander-in-chief in the Medi- anean and Prince George was next appointed to his flagship, the Alexan- dra, April 30, 1888.

With the duke he went on a visit to the present Sultan at Con- stinople, and during the three years that he served on the Mediterranean station he visited for a second or third time his uncle, the king of Hellenes, at Athens, renewed his acquaintance with the late Khedive Tewfik at Cairo, be- sides cruising at various times off the coast of Asia Minor, Syria and the islands of the Aegean.

At the end of three years of very successful service in the Mediterra- nean, which had been full of much in- structive discipline for him, Prince George returned to England and volun- teered for another course of gunnery training on board H. M. S. Excellent at Portsmouth.

Having undergone this, he was ap- pointed Feb. 1, 1889, to the Northum- berland, Capt. Darwin, the flagship of the channel squadron, under the com- mand of Vice Admiral Baird.

He took an active part in the naval maneuvers that summer, and was placed in charge of one of the finest of the torpedo boats.

Praise for His Skill

It happened that another of these craft disabled her screw off the coast of Ireland, and was in danger of drift- ing on to a lee shore. The sea was running high and there was a stiff gale blowing. Prince George was sent to her assistance. The task was a most difficult one, owing to the delicate na- ture of the construction of such boats. He showed, however, such skill, judg- ment and nerve in approaching, secur- ing with wire hawser after several hours' effort, and ultimately towing the disabled craft into safety, as won him high encomiums of praise to the admi- ralty from Capt. Fitzgerald and other senior officers who witnessed his con- duct on that occasion.

The achievement was perhaps all the more noteworthy as Prince George (like Nelson and many another dis- tinguished naval officer) suffered ter- ribly from seasickness; and the behav- ior of a torpedo boat in rough weather is not the most conducive to quiet- ness or nerve for comfortably col- lecting the thoughts.

As he had now unmistakably given evidence of exceptional capability as lieutenant, the admiralty ordered him on May 6, 1890, to commission the Thrush, a large gunboat of 800 tons burden and 1200 horse-power, at Chat- ham, and West Indian station. In- dependent commands are usually given to senior lieutenants only, but it was a distinction which Prince George had well earned.

He had further the ticklish task as- signed to him of towing a torpedo boat across the Atlantic to Bermuda. This, too, he successfully accomplished. His professional duties took him to various places in the Canadian domi- nion and to one or two on the United States seaboard.

Seeks to Avoid Honors

In the following autumn he was de- puted by the queen as her representa- tive to open the industrial exhibition at Jamaica. This was his third visit to the West Indies, and his presence awakened among the inhabitants of every degree even more than the usual fervent demonstrations of loyalty to the crown and attachment to the United Kingdom. Except on state oc- casions, such as this visit to Jamaica, Prince George always deprecated the necessity of being received with royal honors.

It was with no desire to avoid per- forming any real portion of his duty that he requested the admiral in com- mand of the station, Sir George Wat- son, that he might receive his sanction to be treated simply as an ordinary naval officer.

As soon as this wish became gener- ally known he was enabled to see both the people and the places to which his ship was dispatched more naturally, and thus to obtain by direct personal intercourse a probably truer and more adequate knowledge of their real con- dition than if they had been exhibited to him in constant gala attire.

The Thrush was now required on the west coast of Africa, and her place was to be taken on the North American station by a ship of greater power and tonnage. She was therefore ordered home to England. On arriving there Prince George was promoted to the rank of commander on Aug. 24, 1891. He was then in his 27th year, and the 16th of his naval service.

DEATH BED SCENES

IN KING'S PALACE

LONDON, May 7.—King Edward VII, who returned to England from a vacation ten days ago in the best of health, died at 11:45 last night in the presence of his family, after an illness of less than a week, which was serious, hardly more than three days.

The Prince of Wales succeeded to the crown immediately, according to the laws of the kingdom, without official ceremony. His first official act was to dispatch to the lord mayor the announcement of his father's death, in pursuance of custom.

His telegram read: "I am deeply grieved to inform you that my beloved father, the king, passed away peacefully at 11:45 to- night."

The physicians soon afterward issued their official bulletin, which was as follows: "May 6, 11:50 p. m.—His majesty, the king, breathed his last at 11:45 to- night, in the presence of her majesty, Queen Alexandra, the Prince and Princess of Wales, Princess Royal, the Duchess of York, Princess Victoria and Princess Louise, the Duchess of Argyll, Laking, "Raid," "Powell," "Dawson."

Pneumonia, following bronchitis, is believed to have been the cause of death, but the doctors thus far have refused to make a statement. Some of the king's friends are convinced that worry over the critical political situa- tion which confronted him, with sleep- less nights, aggravated it, it did not cause the fatal illness.

Sad News Expected

Besides the nearest relatives in En- gland, the Duke of York and the Arch- bishop of Canterbury were in the death chamber. The king's brother, the Duke of Connaught, with his family, is at St. James, hastening home from Africa. The king's daughter, Queen Maud of Nor- way, will start for England tomorrow. The intelligence that the end of King Edward's reign had come was not a surprise at the last. The people had been expecting to hear it at any hour since the evening's bulletin was posted at Buckingham palace and flashed throughout the kingdom.

The capital received it without ex- citement, but sadly, for the king with his own people was unquestionably one of the most popular rulers in the world. They regarded him as one of the strongest forces making for the stability of the peace of the empire.

Knew He Was Dying

"The fashionable restaurants were just emptying and a few groups of late theatre-goers were making their way homeward through the rain, while a small crowd still hung about the palace, when the streets were filled sud- denly with newsmen shrilly crying: "Death of the king!"

The papers were quickly seized, and the people discussed the momentous event quietly and soberly. The streets were deserted by 1 o'clock.

With a few minutes after the death of the king, the home office was tele- graphing the intelligence to the heads of other governments and the British diplomats and colonial officials throughout the world.

All who knew the king anticipated that his death would be sudden, and it would not have occasioned great sur- prise if it had occurred without warn- ing at some social function, as a result of heart trouble, and he refused to take to his bed, and was sitting up yester- day in a large chair, so the palace stories go, corroborating the description of him as an unruly patient, which Dr. Ott gave to a Vienna interviewer last evening.

One of the last utterances attributed to King Edward was: "Well, it is all over, but I think I have done my duty. He seemed then to have reached a full realization that his end was fast approaching.

Unconscious Before Death

The queen and others of the royal family and four doctors had been con- stantly in the sickroom throughout the day.

Several hours before his death the king was in a comatose condition, but he rallied slightly between 9 and 10 o'clock and appeared to recognize his family. Then he lapsed into uncon- sciousness, which ended in his passing away.

When Dr. St. Clair Thomson, the great throat specialist, was called in yesterday morning, it was expected that an operation on the throat would be necessary, but after a consultation it was decided that the king were the sent of the most serious symptoms.

Experts were held in readiness to administer an anaesthetic but there was fear that the weakness of the king's heart might result in a fatal

Announced by Lord Knollys

The body lies in the king's cham- ber in the northwest wing of Buck- ingham palace which is brilliantly lighted, while the rest of the great gloomy building, except Lord Knollys' office, is entirely darkened.

He spent an hour after the king breathed his last, when Lord Knollys walked into the office and said to the waiting reporters: "Gentlemen, his majesty is dead."

The people outside the palace learned the news only when boys appeared with papers on which the king's death had been printed.

In the meantime the prince and princess of Wales had taken leave of the other members of the royal family at the main entrance, soon after mid- night. They drove directly to Marl- borough house, Princess Victoria, who is the mother of the queen. The others of the family followed the prince and princess of Wales.

To Proclaim George V.

A summons to the privy councillors has been issued by Sir Almeric Fitz- Roy, clerk half the council, convening the council in the throne room of St. James palace at 2 o'clock this after- noon, when the councillors will "with one voice and the consent of tongue and heart publish and proclaim that the high and mighty Prince George is now, by the death of our late sovereign of happy memory, our only lawful and rightful liege lord, George V., by the grace of God, king of the united kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, defender of the faith and em- peror of India, to whom we do ac- cede, with all heart and constant obedi- ence, beseeching God, by whom kings and queens do reign, to bless the royal prince, George V., with long and happy years to reign over us."

The new king, after this proclama- tion, will address the council and promise to resign as a constitutional sov- ereign. At the conclusion of the meet- ing King George will issue his first proclamation, requiring all officials to proceed with their duties. Formerly all offices, including the councillors, were vacated on the death of the sov- ereign.

Six Months' Mourning

The aldermen of the city of Lon- don will attend the council and swear allegiance. A proclamation has al- ready been issued by the home office requiring theatres to close today.

The council will go into mourning for six months and the lord mayor ordered that the great bell of St. Pauls shall be tolled throughout the day. So sur- den was the king's death that most of the high government officials were ab- sent.

Premier Asquith, who is in Spain, cannot reach London before Monday. It is the duty of the members of both houses of parliament to meet without summons as soon as they can assem- ble, to take the oath of allegiance and receive the message of the king.

Speaker Lowther of the house of commons, however, is in Constantinople.

Political Outlook Changed

Coming so suddenly the death of the king cannot but bring the greatest sorrow to the nation, in whose hearts Edward, first as prince of Wales and afterwards as sovereign, held first place.

His short reign of nine years has been a history of stirring times. It opened with the conclusion of peace after a long and trying war in South Africa, and concludes at the critical moment of one of the most momentous political struggles of modern times, that between the peers and commons. In a day the political outlook of Great Britain has been revolutionized.

Throughout the empire the word was flashed, and today flags are floating at halfmast the world over. Besides the social gloom which the king's death casts over England, several important and long-planned official events must be abandoned. The prince and princess of Wales were to go to South Africa with the squadron, and the prince was to open the first parliament of the new confederation, but his accession to the throne will now prevent this.

Affects Roosevelt's Tour

The death of his majesty will also mean the abandonment of the principal functions of Ex-President Roosevelt's tour. The official receptions, with the embassy entertainments will be can- celled, and the presentation of the free- dom of the city and the luncheon at the Guildhall will probably be given up.

EMPEROR OF GERMANY TO ATTEND THE FUNERAL

BERLIN, May 7.—Following the an- nouncement of the death of King Ed- ward all of the engagements of Em- peror William for the next two days were cancelled. The emperor, who was at Wiesbaden, today decided to start for Berlin tonight and will arrive here tomorrow morning.

The death of the British monarch leaves everything connected with the visit of Mr. Roosevelt in a state of un- certainty which will continue until the emperor makes known his wishes. It is assumed at the foreign office to- day that the emperor will attend the funeral. Foreign Minister Von Schoen sent a message to American Ambassa- dor Hill this morning saying that he wished to see him, and the ambassador soon afterwards called at the foreign office where the new situation as it will affect the Roosevelt program was discussed.

It is regarded as doubtful whether Mr. Roosevelt's visit to the emperor will be made as planned. At least all of the dinners and other anticipated festivals will be omitted.

DEEP EMOTION CAUSED BY DEATH OF KING

PARIS, May 7.—Nowhere in Europe has the passing of King Edward creat- ed deeper emotion than in France where he was gratefully acknowledged as the principal artisan in the present diplomatic combination for the preser- vation of the peace of Europe. The French government intends to express its grief in a most marked fashion.

Premier Briand and others of the cabinet called upon British Ambassa- dor Bertie early today to express their condolences and as soon as Foreign Minister Pichon who is absent from the city, reaches Paris an extraordinary mission will be appointed to attend the funeral. Former President Loubet whose exchanges of visits with King Edward in 1903 resulted in the Anglo- French entente, probably will head the mission.

Most of the French papers appear with black borders today and their editorials sound a common note of grief which may be summed up in the words of the Matin which says: "England has lost a great king, the world a great figure and France a great friend."

The diplomatic consequences of a change of rulers are not dwelt upon prominently, but there is no doubt that there is a popular feeling of anxiety. While the present basis of peace is re- garded as solid, it is realized that Ed- ward's personal influence so powerfully exercised in all the recent crises toward peace can hardly be transmitted to his successor and the disappearance of the monarch is likely therefore singularly to modify the position of Great Britain on the European chess board.

The report that the liberals have already agreed to postpone the issue regarding the British house of lords until next year in order to avoid con- fronting the new reign with a grave internal question, creates great satis- faction here where the decision is re- garded not only as a fine exhibition of national dignity but as the best guar- antee against a rupture of the contin- uity of Great Britain's foreign policy with which France is closely associat- ed.

TELEGRAPHS CONDOLENCE

ROME, May 7.—The morning papers spread the news of King Edward's death causing a deep impression throughout the kingdom. The pope has telegraphed his condolences as have the premier and the foreign min- ister.

The chamber of deputies adjourned today as a sign of mourning for King Edward. Before adjournment prayers were paid to the late monarch by Premier Luzzati, Foreign Minister San- guillano and the president of the cham- ber.

JAPANESE PRESS VOICES NATION'S GRIEF

TOKIO, May 7.—Japan, as Great Brit- ain's ally, feels the death of King Ed- ward most keenly. All public func- tions have been suspended. It is confidently believed that the demise of the British monarch will not affect the alliance of the two countries.

The press is unanimous in its ex- pressions of grief and in declaring that the death of King Edward is a severe loss, not only to Great Britain but to the cause of peace and human- ity throughout the world. Tomor- row's papers will be black-bordered and will devote columns to eulogizing King Edward and his success in ad- vancing the cause of international peace.

The Kokumin, generally used as a government organ, designates the late king as the "personification of peace." The Hochi expresses the hope that the spirit of peace encouraged by the late monarch may long remain the guide for international policies.

The Jiji calls "Edward the great benefactor of peace and humanity and other papers make similar com- ments. It is noted that the emperor and empress are deeply grieved.

SIGNS OF GRIEF IN BOSTON

BOSTON, May 7.—There were many evidences of mourning for King Ed- ward in this city. The city hall and financial district American and British flags were displayed at half mast and in many other business sections there were similar tributes. There was no official expression in similar lines on public buildings.

BELLS TOLLED ON KING'S DEATH

LONDON, May 7.—The tolling of the great bell in St. Paul's cathedral at minute intervals between 5 and 6 o'clock this morning, an office per- formed only for the sovereigns and the archbishops of Canterbury and York, conveyed to countless thousands of Londoners and suburbanites the first intimation of the death of King Ed- ward VII.

Great crowds coming into the city on early trains proceeded toward Buck- ingham palace and by 9 o'clock an im- mense stream of people was slowly fil- ling past the front of the building with its drawn blinds round to the west end of the palace to gaze upon the windows of the chamber where the body of the dead king was lying.

On the bulletin board was still planned the sheet of foolscap with its tidings of the momentous event scrawled hurriedly in a dozen words and this was another centre of inter- est for the throng, each of whom seemed determined to read with his own eyes the official announcement.

Over the palace the royal standard was half masted, but except for this and the frequent coming and going of officials and attendants at the palace there was little outward evidence of the passing away of the great king.

Queen Alexandra, in bearing up bravely, she had breakfast as usual in her own apartments today.

Members of the royal household at- tended a special service in the private chapel of the palace at an early hour. The death of his majesty has caused a general suspension of business and the abandonment of all race meetings and other sports, public gayeties and private entertainments. The theatres have closed. The stock exchange and other markets were exposed and the lawyers took a recess as a token of respect. Everywhere throughout the country flags were placed at half mast upon public buildings, warships and other shipping, while church bells sounded the doleful news. Early to- day it was announced that George V would be proclaimed king from the steps of the Royal exchange at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon. Subsequently it was found impossible to get the privy councillors together so early as was first intended, so the meeting with the king in the throne room at St. James palace was postponed until four o'clock this afternoon. Sunbeams have been sent to all the councillors but it is probable that only a small portion of them are near enough to the city to attend the ceremony of hearing the king's oath and declaring their al- legiance to the new monarch. Follow- ing the hearing of the privy councillors with the king the proclamation of the ascension of George V will be publicly made by heralds and their pursuivants to the accompaniment of a fan- fare of trumpets in the quadrangle of the palace and repeated in Charles Cross, the Royal Exchange, Temple Bar and Chancery. The American feeling regarding the death of King Edward, in accordance with cable instruc- tions from Secretary Knox, was ex- pressed this morning to Sir Edward Grey, secretary of state for foreign affairs, by American Ambassador Reld in the following letter: "Sir: My government instructs me to express to you and through you to the British government and people the sincere and profound sympathy of the president, the government and people of the United States in the loss, by their British kinsmen of a ruler so be- loved and so justly distinguished among all the nations of the earth for his wisdom and kindness and for the influence of those high qualities in be- half of all that is best." "The morning services at the church- es were more largely attended than usual today. All of the congregations were in deep mourning. A notable change in the service was the substi- tution of the words, "the queen, the queen dowager and all the royal fam- ily," for the familiar phrase, "the queen, the prince and princess of Wales and all the royal family." "The bulk of the population of the country have donned mourning garb in some form. Men who are not wholly clothed in black are wearing dark scarfs or black bands about their necks. The women seen are almost without exception dressed in black. Streamers of crepe hang from the whips in the hands of the cabmen. The shop fronts bear mourning shutters." "Since earliest morning a flood of messages has been pouring into the palace from the chiefs of foreign land- ings. One of the first received by the queen dowager was a sympathetic telegram from Emperor William. Ambassador Reld and Secretary Phillips of the

FOR A SANER FOURTH.

Already in a great many cities throughout the country arrangements are being made for the celebration of Independence day. Here in Lowell we are not likely to have any official celebration, but in spite of this the day will be observed in much the usual way.

For some years past the press and the police authorities throughout the country have been endeavoring to bring about a more sane observance of the day, to eliminate the use of explosives and every other feature that is dangerous. An effort is also being made to suppress the nerve-racking noise, but this would largely be remedied by the prohibition of firecrackers and toy pistols. The young people will insist upon the use of fishbones, cowbells, torpedoes and fire crackers, unless met with firmness by the police.

The problem is one involving much difficulty, and unless the people generally are educated to the enormity of the harm done throughout the entire country as a result of accidents, they are not likely to respond to any great extent to the movement for reform. Strict police regulations are necessary as the first step and a few arrests or prosecutions in each city would serve to convince the people that the police are sincere. There is no good purpose served by allowing boys to blow their own heads off, to start fires or in other ways to give a lot of needless annoyance to the public in general. The Fourth can be fittingly observed in a thoroughly enjoyable and patriotic manner without descending to antics that would lead a stranger to believe that about half the population had suddenly become insane.

DEATH OF KING EDWARD OF ENGLAND.

The death of King Edward has spread a feeling of gloom over the entire British empire and throughout the entire world there is sympathy and sorrow for the loss of a sovereign who, during his reign, had proved himself to be a wise and conservative ruler, a friend of humanity, the promoter of peace and who sincerely desired and labored for the best interests of his people.

The United States especially has profound sympathy with the British nation in the loss of its popular sovereign.

King Edward during his comparatively short reign had given evidence of considerable ability as a statesman and a diplomat. He established friendly relations with Russia, France and the United States, where before there had been a feeling of distrust if not of real enmity. He also in a great measure improved the relations existing between his own country and Germany, two nations between which there seems to be a spirit of jealousy that is liable at any time to assume a very serious aspect.

The death of King Edward at this time will be deeply deplored by the liberal party and the people of Ireland, because they looked to him to settle the political controversy between the house of commons and the lords, a controversy upon the right solution of which so much depended for the democracy of the nation.

It is a well known fact that King Edward was in sympathy with the liberals and had been for years in favor of the principal reforms advocated by the liberal party, but in accordance with the custom of the reigning sovereign, he kept aloof from the political arena, taking no part in the controversy unless called upon to exercise the royal prerogative in the usual manner. It was generally believed that he would meet the demands of the prime minister to create a majority in the house of lords favorable to the curtailment of the powers of the upper house either by creating the necessary number of peers or by prevailing upon the lords to consent with the commons in passing the measure.

The question now in the minds of a great many people is, what effect King Edward's death will have upon the reform measures that are pending. This is a matter that cannot be answered at this time. The outside world has had little from which to judge the new king so far as his ability or political sympathies are concerned. His training was largely in the navy where he attained high honors on his merits. It must be remembered that his elder brother, Clarence, was educated and trained as the future king, but his death made George Frederick prince of Wales and heir to the throne to which by inheritance he has now acceded.

In matters of military training the new king is well equipped for whatever duties may come before him. But we are not so sure that he will prove equally competent to act with ability on matters of political moment or questions bearing upon the welfare and progress of the people. Still, he is comparatively a young man, he will have good advisers and the great responsibility coming so suddenly upon him may develop in him powers of statesmanship that may astonish the world.

A natural consequence of this plunging the nation in sorrow in the midst of a political crisis will be to cause a great deal of sympathy for the royal family and to counteract any opposition that might have existed against the aristocracy or even royalty itself. This will help to weaken the opposition that threatened the peers. For some months to come the patriotic spirit of the English people will be at high tension and there will be little probability of any move against the aristocracy which must in the long run be regarded as the chief remaining prop to royalty. After the lapse of some months, however, the tendency of public sentiment will be back to the conditions that prevailed before the king's death and the old problems of reforming the house of lords, radical changes in financial policies, and the granting of home rule to Ireland will again press themselves for consideration of parliament. They are among the problems that are likely to test the political sagacity of the new king.

King Edward a short time ago remarked that he was the last king who would sit undisturbed on the throne of England. He undoubtedly foresaw the growing strength of the British democracy and the demand for reform threatening the last remnants of feudalism in overthrowing landlordism, hereditary titles and ultimately perhaps royalty itself. This no doubt was the king's vision of the future and of what may ultimately fall to the lot of his successors on the throne, but how, when or by what means, none can venture to predict.

SEEN AND HEARD

It is not de rigueur in Tonkers, N. Y., to appear on the street in one's pajamas. Arthur G. Brown, of No. 30 Poplar street, very nearly forgot it early in the morning when his mother-in-law, Mrs. J. Strum, aroused him with the news that a burglar was just leaving by the front gate. Brown looked through the open window and saw that Mrs. Strum's news was true. For an instant he thought of giving chase as he was, but he caught himself just in time.

But when Brown reached for his trousers they were missing from their accustomed place. Likewise his coat and his shoes. The burglar was far down the street and Brown covered the distance between the bedside and the wardrobe in one bound. Thank Heaven, his Sunday clothes were in the same room with him!

Only the Sunday clothes weren't. Once more Brown looked from the open window and his worst fears were realized. The burglar had his Sunday clothes as well as his others; not even a waistcoat had been overlooked.

Then Brown called up the police. While they were on their way to the house Brown found that his watch was gone, and with it $40 in money. For the last time Brown looked from the window. The street was empty.

When the police arrived Brown wore an air of chagrin above his pajamas. Later added a smile over the fact, although it had been costly, he had said nothing to offend the conventionality.

Two Coney Island waiters were talking about short changing.

"It's bad to have a chance," said one, "because you can never tell what will happen if you're caught. The best pickings I ever had I didn't take any chances on. It was last summer at the Seattle exposition. I was selling tickets at a 15-cent attraction, and every time a guy shoved in a $2 bill for one or two tickets, I counted out carefully five or ten cents in silver too much. If he bought two tickets I'd lay out 80 cents in silver. Nine men out of ten would grab the change and beat it, thinking they had beat me out of a dime. They seldom remembered that I had a dollar more to give them, they were in such a hurry to get away with my dime."

"The tenth man, who didn't fall for the game, was generally honest enough to show my dime back, so I seldom lost anything. I made $10 a day besides my pay, all without taking a chance."

Patrons of a hotel dining room stopped eating while a waiting not boiled potato of extraordinary size was carried across the room and set before a man seated at a centre table.

"Brought it himself, all the way from Oklahoma," said the manager.

"He brought enough to last him all the time he is here," he kept them in his room and sends one down just in time to have it cooked for dinner. Yes, they're good potatoes, but that isn't why he brought a sackful up from Oklahoma. He is in the potato business and he sells his own potatoes as an advertisement. A potato of that size carried across the room held up high at arm's length is going to attract attention anywhere. It makes folks ask questions and pretty soon the restaurant of those potatoes is made."

"There are other fellows as enterprising as this Oklahoma chap. Every year an apple grower from Oregon plays the same game. He brings samples of his best apples along and has them served in styles that are bound to make people look."

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

Four full shows will be given at the Opera House today, starting at 1.30, 3, 7 and 8.30, and what is proving to be the best laughing show of the current vaudeville season at the Opera House will be given. Little, Perry & Gibson, in the laughable sketch, "A Night at the Club"; Marlow and Plunkett as the teacher and deaf student, and W. J. Holmes in a rural monologue keep the audience in roars of laughter, while the dancing of Burns and Clifton is a big hit and one of the features of an excellent program. Tomorrow evening, and a new program will be offered which will include Little, Perry & Gibson, W. J. Holmes, Katherine Formances will be given afternoon and evening, commencing at 1.30 and 8.30. Commencing Monday another of the big bills being offered at this theatre will be seen and one of the big things of the program will be Dare Devil.

Known as the cyclone man in sensational looping the loop act. Other big features will also be given, and at the Opera House are five and ten cents, and the wonder is how so much can be given for the money.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

Today is the last chance to see Nelson and Milledge in their comedy sketch, "Glass Put In." Lovers of comedy should not miss it. Francis Wood is doing a fine rolling hoop act that cannot help but amuse the audience.

Miss Claudia Besette is making a hit singing "Anybody Here Seen Kelly?" and travelogue of the different countries are shown. A continuous performance is given Saturday and Sunday. Admission 5 and 10 cents.

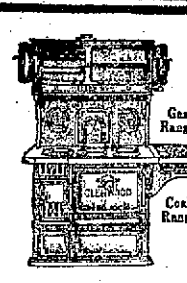

THEATRE VOYONS

Everyone who has seen "The Penitent of Florence" at the Theatre Voyons cordially endorses the claim of its makers, who say it is the best semi-romantic picture in months. The story is easily followed and it is told in a pleasing manner. The acting is well done and the staging is exceptionally good. The biograph subject, "The Golem Seekers," is a clever mingling, one that holds the attention all of the time. "The Portrait" is a really laughable, bright and witty comedy, and one of the best of the kind. The usual concert of the best pictures and the cleverest songs will be given in the quality way that has given this house the lead all the time.

STAR THEATRE

A strong bill of motion pictures, accompanied by two popular illustrated songs, is being presented at the Star theatre, and for the admission of five

A biograph picture, "The Final Settlement," is intensely dramatic. There are several comic subjects. The show is "the biggest and best in Lowell."

EMPIRE THEATRE

The clown who is one of the Winkley Kress Trio at the Empire theatre plays his part well. He is a clown in every sense of the word, performing acrobatic feats and at the same time giving to them that touch of comedy for which one is looking from such a character. Whitney and Young still hold the attention of the house in their black face comedy sketch and seem to be much appreciated. Allie, Velicia in her dancing act will also be here for the remaining part of this week.

The selection of the pictures present all sorts of situations and are made up of such a variety of subjects that everyone is sure to find several pictures for which they have a special liking.

The usual concert will be given tomorrow.

The attendance was very large and during the course of the evening an excellent program of music and readings was carried out and refreshments were served.

President Thomas W. Cryer had full charge of the evening's festivities.

The program included a selection, "The Old Brigade," by the Glee club; duet, "The Last Mile Stone," Messrs. Hild and Hyde; recitation, James Barrett; comic song, Mr. Thomas; song, "Mona," Mr. Hild; selection, "Comrade in Arms," by the Glee club; song, Mr. Hinton; song, Mr. Thomas; duet, Messrs. Whitaker and Hyde; selection by the Glee club, Mr. A. E. Whitaker.

At the present time from Rogers street to the corner of Andover street, Lawrence street is but 41 feet wide and there is a great deal of traffic passing over that section. It is contiguous to the U. S. Cartridge and the U. S. Bunting companies and the Stirling and Waterhead mills.

It was pointed out that the bridge would be willing to give the land bordering on the street in order to have it widened. This would provide a 50 foot front on both sides of the bridge for some distance. The project would have in view the ultimate widening of Lawrence street for the whole of the 41 foot width.

It is alleged that he came to and offered to sell a lady's to Mrs. Smith. He said he had up and wanted some. She gave him $10 for it. It is alleged that Higgins purchased the installment plan, having down, promising to pay the in weekly payments.

He was ordered out of the house and a key to the house. It is alleged that while Mrs. her daughter were out of one day last week he entered the key and besides taking which he had sold to Mrs. another watch and $10 in.

Smith, the first witness, testified that she kept several lodgers in the house and worked every day in the mill. After explaining how Higgins had ordered him out because of his actions she told of his coming to her and offering the watch for sale. She said that she did not really care for the watch but in order to help out the young man gave him the money. She then turned the watch over to her daughter to put in a safe place. She did not see the watch again until she saw it at the police station. She said that she had $10 in a bureau drawer which she was going to pay an insurance man, but when she went to look for it it was gone.

Annie Smith, a daughter of the first witness, identified a watch offered her by Deputy Downey as the one purchased by her mother and said that she had placed it in a box in a phonograph cabinet. There was also missing a gold watch belonging to her which she had placed in a trunk.

Inspector John A. Walsh, who arrested Higgins, said that in searching the defendant he found a key which fitted one of the doors of the Smith house in his possession. Witness said that Higgins had said that the watch had not been out of his possession since he got it from the jewelry company. Neither Miss Smith's watch nor the money was found.

Counsel for the government said that he would be busy on Monday and the case was continued till Tuesday.

In recognizing the witnesses it was found that one of the witnesses who had been summoned had failed to put in an appearance and Warren O'Connell, Frank Goodwin explained to the court that when he served the summons on the man yesterday the latter said he would not go into court and the court could go to a hot climate if it didn't like the manner in which he acted. Judge Hadley immediately ordered a warrant issued for the man's arrest, and the chances are that he will appear in court before Tuesday morning.

The cost of the food spoiled by mistakes in regulating the ordinary two-damper ranges amounts to a large sum.

The Single Damper of the Crawford affords absolute fire and oven control by one motion—slide the knob to "kindle," "bake" or "check," the range does the rest.

The Oven of the Crawford has cup-joint heat flues which heat everywhere alike and make it the quickest and surest of bakers.

The Two Hods (patented) in the base—one for ashes instead of the old clumsy ash pan—one for coal, is a great trouble-saving feature.

JAW DISLOCATED

GIRL WAS LAUGHING AT A JOKE

BROOKLYN, May 7.—"If two and two make four, then why is a hen?" asked one of three men of three girls in a touring car in Jamaica avenue, Union Course, Queens.

Two of the girls giggled this with equanimity, but not so the third, who gave her name as Josephine Henderson of Brooklyn. She never had heard this stilted of jokes and broke into a laugh that ended with a moan.

"Hey! Stop the car! Something's happened to Josie," cried one of the girls.

The car was brought to a stop beside the curb and the five other occupants tried as best they knew how to unlock the girl's jaw, which had become dislocated. Dr. Walter H. Kerby, who happened to be passing, snapped the girl's jaw back into place.

"Oh, thank you," she said, "but wasn't that funny?"

"One dollar, please," said the doctor, and it wasn't funny at all.

The Vogue of Checks

What Smartly Gowned Children are Wearing This Season

This black and white checked coat. The rather deep cuffs are also of the moire.

Costume for a girl of eight or upward. It is a dressy and does not make and creases like a dress. The natural colored ponce is the best to select for many of the dyed colorings fade in a most unsightly fashion. Particularly is this the case with the navy blue tones. Contrasting trimmings may be used on the ponce frock, but, according to Madame Mode, the soft yellows of this fabric respond more successfully to a treatment of black or cream, and a little hand embroidery on the waist is a very exclusive adornment for the ponce frock. Such work is most effective when carried out in big, bold designs with heavy silk.

The one piece model, which is really a two piece affair—waist and skirt being made separate and joined at the waist line—gives the most satisfactory results. The skirt may have plaits introduced in some modish fashion or it can be one of the scant, skippy plain affairs that are too trying for a growing girl to affect. The Gibson waist is always a becoming bodice, and the plain front serves as a fine base of operations for embroidery, but when the ponce color is thought to be unfavorable to the wearer's complexion an all-in-one bodice with gimpes and sleeves of net, lace or lingerie is a good choice.

As most young girls have pretty throats the collarless neck is to be recommended, and the newest finish for this round effect is a finely plaited frill about three inches deep, which is put on without a heading, being merely sewed inside the dress neck and turned over. The fit of such a frill to be chic must be absolutely without reproach; otherwise smartness is vocally lacking.

MUSINGS OF ELINOR

THE girl who makes friends is a light. She comes into like a sea breeze—fresh, laughing, bright and left with happy duality. She is ready for any never throws cold water on you. She generally sees the funny things, and she has such a hearted way of describing them you feel that you have seen the self. She does not retell though, and she does not know be spiteful or sarcastic or big she never exaggerates to prove impression.

She likes everybody and thinks of suspecting people of it, they have proved themselves worthy of her opinion.

She prefers to consider it good and honest until it has itself otherwise.

She always gets along, for friends everywhere. And her big enough to contain every she never forgets her friends they forget her.

How to Keep the Children Well

If you want to avoid worry in the nursery learn to keep your children well," says a noted physician who makes a specialty of the treatment of children's diseases.

Half the trouble in rearing a family, said this specialist in an interview recently, comes from sickness in the nursery. Sickly children, poor little things, are a constant source of worry to themselves, to their brothers and sisters and, above all, to their mothers.

Squabbling, peevishness, bad temper, screaming, obstinacy, sulks, back-wardness, perversity, are more often the outcome of want of health than an evidence of wickedness. A nursery full of really healthy children will no doubt be a noisy place, but it is the rarest thing to find a really healthy child ill humored. When fun is conspicuous by its absence in the nursery the doctor is much more needed than the birch rod, and the mother and nurse who recognize the truth of this will see that it is much wiser to study how to keep the children well than to carry on a constant system of scolding and punishing them for their tempers and tantrums.

The lesson of how to keep them well, however, is not one to be learned in a day—far from it. It requires a lot of experience to know how to keep children well, and young mothers often have to buy this experience at a high price.

The very first lesson to learn—in fact, the A B C of the knowledge of how to keep sickness out of the nursery—is to recognize the part that feeding plays in childhood and the part that the stomach plays in the ailments of children.

The majority of people, for instance, rarely associate such ailments as convulsions, carache, toothache and headache with derangement of the stomach. They can understand that a pain in the stomach may follow the eating of indigestible food, but that the ear should come from cause would seem absurd to them. Convulsions are more often the result of indigestion than of anything else. In fact, it is an intense sympathy between the nerves of the stomach and the brain and head generally, the first and one of more of the resent the irritation and the resentment by pain of one or the other.

But when this point is reached there is another difficulty to choosing of the right kind of the individual child. It is not so difficult a matter as one that requires some thought, for—mark this—you lay down any cut and dried "thumb" set of directions for children that will suit all alike.

What is one man's meat is another man's poison," holds good with children even more than with grown men and women. I know of ten who always complained of indigestion, and who were never able to eat anything, and in his family the wildest antics followed by an ache in the stomach never dreamed that there was any sympathy between the two organs.

In later life the boy became deaf. No doubt his body was part of his anatomy and reason quickly than any other special economy the irritation set up in the stomach. For other children indigestion was an excellent nourishment, but not for him. The mother who would children well must therefore regard to the special require each individual child.

DAPHNE

SMART SEPARATE COAT

CHECKED costumes for children are having an immense vogue this season. Not only are the girls being gowned in smart little tailored suits of shepherd check, but the small boys are sporting natty sailor suits of the same fabric. Fashion seldom takes economy into her account, but in the present instance of checked materials for children's costumes she has unwittingly achieved this point, and for good wearing qualities every mother in the land will give the palm to checker-board effects. The modish little suit for a girl of ten or twelve to be seen among the illustrations is of green and white check serge, which is rather more unusual, as far as the color scheme is concerned, than the many other combinations. The skirt is made with groups of three plaits alternating with plain panels the same width as the plaits. The coat is of the present fashionable length—that is, reaching a trifle above the knee line. It is semifitting and fastens with imitation made buttons. Drawn work collar and cuffs of cream colored scrim make a becoming finish for this neat little jacket. A word in passing about coat lengths. They vary in the small girl's model, just as they do in those of grownup girls' coats, from hip length to a drop that may be distinctly called three-quarter, but, whatever the length, a long, narrow opening of the front of the coat is a feature everywhere. The only variation from type is found in the smallest of revers. The long separate coat pictured is one of the most useful wraps a girl can have in her wardrobe. It comes in handy for automobiling to protect the dainty linen or gingham gown from dust and is the proper weight for protection when the breezes blow at the seashore or in the mountains. And for cool days at home this coat will be found just the thing. The shawl collar of moire silk is a smart feature on

STYLISH EFFECTS IN CHECKED COSTUMES

Latest Flying Costume for Women

THE costume which is sure to be taken up by women aviators is composed of a skirt with very full trousers which may be converted into a walking or automobile skirt. The coat is high necked, and the blouse is held snugly at the waist with a patent leather belt. The material is broadcloth in a serviceable shade of mole color.

The aeroplane figure, too, is the fashion.

THE FAMOUS DRESS OF MOLE BROADCLOTH.

Innoble one of the hour, and classes are in progress in New York city to acquire this silhouette. The woman who is conducting a class of this kind went through a special course of instruction in Paris. She admits it took her six months of the hardest work to gain the conspicuous tall, slim and graceful appearance that is now her best advertisement. Chin straps, rubber jackets and patent tips for tapering the ends of the fingers are among the mechanical instruments over each finger and are put on with a spring attachment. Lovely, long tapering fingers are supposed to result from a nightly application of these tips. The woman who "does" will be interested in knowing that her hair may be curled by electricity and keep its wave for six months. Weather does not affect this manufactured curl, nor sham-poo either. All one wants to acquire the curl is a large amount of vanity, lots of patience and a good fat check.

Maple Sugar Makes the Most Delicious Bonbons

REAL maple sugar is such a delicious sweet in itself that it seems like painting the lily to boil it down with cream and nuts or to turn it into a fondant, but those who want to do so may find the following recipes useful:

For a maple fondant take three cups of maple sirup, two of cane sugar and half a teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Boil this mixture until it forms a thread an inch long when dipped from a spoon. Then pour it into a buttered pan and let it stand for twenty minutes. At the end of this time beat it with a fork until it thickens. Turn the mass out on a buttered platter and treat it like ordinary fondant, then use in any way desired. Balls of the fondant may be pressed between halves of nuts or rolled in fresh grated coconut or squares of it may be dipped in melted chocolate.

Maple Bonbon.—This delicious sweet calls for two big cups of broken maple sugar and a scant cupful of rich milk or cream boiled together until a little hardens when stirred in a cold saucer. When this stage is reached add some chopped nut meats, butter-nuts or pecan nuts preferred, and pour the mixture into buttered pans after beating until it begins to thicken. When cold cut into squares. This also makes a nice cake filling if spread over cake before it becomes too hard.

Beat one cupful of maple sirup and add one egg together. Add one scant cupful of sour cream, one-half teaspoonful of ginger, a level teaspoonful of soda, a saltspoonful of salt and two and one-half cups of flour. Beat altogether thoroughly and bake in a rather cool oven.

Boil a pint of milk in a double boiler. Mix three beaten egg yolks with a cupful of milk, then stir into the hot milk. Melt a cupful and a half of maple sugar or take the sirup, add to the thickened milk and take from the fire. Add a pint of rich cream and when cool freeze.

NEW USE FOR PAJAMAS.

In a family where the mother and daughters live alone the housekeeper has a fashion of donning pajamas while preparing breakfast and doing her morning work.

"I do not like the garments to sleep in," she says, "but for wear around the house they are ideal. There is nothing to catch dirt and no danger from flaring cloth catching in the fire, and, in fact, I move more freely than when encumbered with skirts and other paraphernalia of usual clothing."

This woman's idea certainly has much to recommend it, for certain pajamas are preferable to kimonos to work in.

Pajamas are easily made, and nearly all pattern companies put out the patterns, or they may be purchased ready to wear at reasonable prices. So pajamas let it be for working clothes about the house.

NOVEL COCARDES FOR HATS.

The flat coquard, or rosette of flowers, is a favorite trimming on the season's hats; but, as a rule, it lacks originality, and one soon wears of tightly packed button roses or rosettes with violets as a "surround" or a halo of them over green leaves.

These coquards are much smarter when something else is used, and an enterprising milliner has supplied this deficiency. She has evolved a stunning toque in dull green crepe, just the shade of watercress, and has trimmed it with a cluster of golden water lilies and their hard, round buds, with a circle of watercress.

Another and more remarkable creation is a hat of pale, cream nut brown straw with a clump of unique hazel nuts just turning and green and brown hazel twigs and buds—no leaves. Still another coquard on one of her productions—a big hat this time—was formed of clover, white on the outside, then palest mauve, then pink, then cerise in the center. It looked wonderfully well on the large black shape, with no other trimming than a scarf of champagne lace.

USES FOR LEMONS.

No family should be without lemons. Their uses are almost too many for enumeration.

The juice of a lemon in hot water taken on awakening in the morning is an excellent liver corrective and for stout women is better than any anti-fat medicine ever invented.

Glycerin and lemon juice, half and half, on a bit of absorbent cotton, is the best thing in the world with which to moisten the lips and tongue of a fever parched patient.

A dash of lemon juice in plain water is an excellent tooth wash. It not only removes tartar, but sweetens the breath.

A teaspoonful of the juice in a small cup of black coffee will almost certainly relieve a bilious headache.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

Nothing more elaborate or expensive than time and air is needed to remove kerosene oil from a carpet where it has been accidentally spilled. Wipe up all that can be removed that way. Then open the window, allow time, and Mother Nature will do the rest.

For colored garments the best starch is the old fashioned flour starch. To give it the right luster and keep it from sticking just before taking from the fire drop a small piece of paraffin into it and stir until dissolved.

Bernice Allen's Wonderful Hair

IN the chorus of every musical comedy there is a dainty specimen of femininity dubbed by the profession "the blithest girl." In the new musical production, "A Sky-lark," which is likely to run all summer at a Broadway theater in New York city, Bernice Allen is "the blithest girl."

This small lady, a veritable pocket edition of Venus, is only four feet eleven inches high, but the most wonderful thing about Miss Allen is that she has a head of hair measuring several inches longer than her dainty self. Women who have to purchase an odd dime here and there from their household expenses, pin money and salaries, to accumulate enough shillings to purchase swirl brids, puffs and curls for the new coiffure will certainly envy this fortunate girl her wealth of tresses. But, true to her prerogative of womanly perversity, Bernice Allen looks upon her wealth of hair as a bother and pettily refers to her five feet of magnificently fine and glossy brown hair as "the worry of her life."

When asked what hair tonics, lotions and revitalizers she used to promote this remarkable hairdo display Miss Allen airily remarked, "Why, like Topsy, it 'jes' growed." And grow it surely did into a garment with unconfined, envelops the tin girl in a covering of wonder-maintenance.

The following are Miss Allen for the care of the hair:

First.—Brush your hair in morning with a long bristle-brush ample space between.

Second.—Wash your hair in or then once every four weeks the best quality of castile soap the hair thoroughly in the old way, avoiding electric heated oil douches at which ton on the oil ducts at the roots.

Third.—Give your hair a sunbath.

Fourth.—Avoid doing your hair tightly and never use sharply hairpins.

Fifth.—When retiring arrange hair in two loose braids.

Sixth.—Massage the scalp finger tips very gently for five minutes before doing it up for the Students Will Have a Fine Picnic.

Received a Warm Welcome to Stockholm

To Confer With the Contractors

The annual picnic of the faculty and students of the Lowell Textile school will be held at the Martin Luther school on Thursday, May 12, and it promises to be one of the big affairs.

The entire school headed by a band will march from the school along Pawtucket street to the boat landing where the steamer Governor Allen will be taken. Upon arrival at the grounds the crowd will form in line according to the classes, with the band heading the procession, followed by the seniors and the other classes in order, marching around the field and disband when it gets to the club house. The first on the order of events will be an inter-class track meet and the events will include the quarter mile run, the running high and broad jumps, the shot, and the class relay and tug-of-war, all of which promise to bring about a lot of excitement.

There will be no other events, such as sack and obelisk races, fat men's race and a midway with African dodger, etc. There will also be a ball game. At noon a dinner will be served which will appeal to the inner man, as everyone will feel like eating by that time, after such a strenuous forenoon. The afternoon will be spent in baseball, swimming if the water is warm enough for those who feel inclined to partake in the aquatic sports, and a general good time. A lunch will be served about six o'clock and the party will return to the city about nine in the evening.

All of the old Textile men who have ever attended the school are cordially invited to attend the festivities and tickets can be obtained from any member of the committee, which consists of A. T. Leck, chairman; R. Brown, H. F. Harrison, J. T. Brady and Mr. A. H. Ferguson of the instructing staff.

SUN ADS. BRING RETURNS
It has become almost a daily occurrence to have people who place advertisements in the classified page of The Sun, to either call or send in word to kill their advertisement as it has done its work long before the time was up. Paul Chaffin placed an advertisement for a want, and he called in the office this week and said that by the time The Sun was out two hours he had 16 applicants for the position and he got just the kind of a man he desired.

Sealed Verdict Coming in Howard Case
Lights burning in the court house late last night indicated that the jury in the case of Howard vs. Boston & Northern was still battling over the proposition before it. The case went to the jury at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. A sealed verdict will be reported on Monday. The jury sent in a sealed verdict sometime after 10 o'clock last night and was liberated.

BOY A HERO
HE JUMPED INTO RIVER TO SAVE COMPANION
SACO, May 7.—Paul Grace, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Grace, who will be five years old today, owes his life to the activity of a playmate, Robert King, aged eight, and to the screams of Hazel Hooper, aged seven.

The youngsters were playing in a boat on the banks of the Saco river, when the Grace boy lost his balance and fell into the water. The King boy jumped into the water, which was two feet deep, and reaching out seized his playmate by one of his feet. He was not strong enough to drag the Grace boy from the water, and the Hooper girl screamed for help. The men heard her cries and rescued the boy.

BIG INCREASE
IN DEPOSITS AT LOWELL INSTITUTION FOR SAVINGS
The annual meeting of the trustees of the Lowell Institution for Savings was held yesterday morning at the bank building on Shattuck street.

Mr. H. R. Fletcher, who has audited the books of the institution for the past four years, has finished his examination, and his report was presented at the meeting. This audit is made according to law, and proves that the accounts of the bank are correct and without a single correction or addition to be made.

The treasurer, Edward B. Carney, presented his annual report, which showed that the bank is exceedingly prosperous. Its deposits are the largest in its history, and its surplus has correspondingly increased.

The dividend declared this morning was at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum. The deposits from the branch banks of the Lowell Institution maintain a constant flow into the parent institution. The deposits from the branch banks have more than doubled during the past year.

EXTRA A SERIOUS FIRE

A brush fire that broke out in North Chelmsford near Crystal lake shortly after one o'clock this afternoon developed so threatening an attitude that the authorities there decided to call upon Lowell for assistance. The chemical responded to the call and at 2 o'clock it was stated that the fire was under control.

Reports from the scene of the fire were to the effect that considerable wood, the property of William P. Proctor, who has a box shop in North Chelmsford, had been destroyed and houses and other buildings were, for a time, in great danger.

Telephone Alarm
A telephone alarm at 10:15 this forenoon summoned a portion of the department to a brush fire in Parkview avenue. The damage was slight.

KING GEORGE V.

KING GEORGE V. AND QUEEN VICTORIA

LONDON, May 7.—King Edward VII died at 11:45 last night after an illness of less than a week.

The late king's eldest son, George, the prince of Wales, became king by inheritance on the death of his father. He will take the oath of office before the privy council, when it can be convened.

Son of Edward VII

George Frederick Ernest Albert, the new king of England, second son of King Edward VII, became heir apparent to the English throne on the death of Queen Victoria, the eldest son having died.

As a youth he was known as Prince George of Wales. George III was born at Norfolk house, St. James square, in 1762. Prince George of Wales first saw the light within almost a stone's throw of the same place, at Marlborough house, in 1865. As a boy he presented in nearly every respect a marked contrast to his elder brother, the late duke of Clarence, who was his senior by just 17 months.

In appearance the one was pale, pensive, retiring, but with a singular grace of manner and deportment that never afterward forsook him; the other was ruddy of countenance, full of brightness and brisance vivacity. The features of the elder were finely cut, in close resemblance to those of his father at the same early age.

Chum of Brother

Prince George, on the other hand, bore a striking likeness to the princess of Wales's sister, the Princess Dagmar, the empress of Russia, not only in the general form and cast of countenance, but also in detail of feature and expression.

For the first 18 years of his life he was the inseparable companion of his brother; and probably there have rarely, if ever, been two brothers that were more attached to each other than these two. Each seemed to find in the other the complement of his own individual characteristics.

There is no doubt that the quick liveliness of Prince George acted as a constant and welcome stimulus both in work and play hours to the more lymphatic temperament of his brother, while that brother's quiet steadiness of tongue served as a counterpoise to the younger's impulsive decisiveness.

Enter Navy Together

The brothers entered the navy together as cadets on the 5th of June, 1877. The regulation limit of age within which boys must enter is 12 years or, the one side and 13½ years on the other. Prince Eddy was within three days of the maximum and Prince George had only passed the minimum by two days. He was probably the youngest cadet that ever joined the Britannia.

The late Prof. Drow of King's college London (whose experience of boys and young men was perhaps as large as any teacher's), had previously superintended the mathematical instruction of the brothers and often expressed himself as much struck by Prince George's ability and intelligence, and regretted that he would not be able

Was Proclaimed at 4 O'Clock
This Afternoon

LONDON, May 7.—The king is dead. King George V. was proclaimed this afternoon.

The privy councillors met at 4 o'clock to hear the Imperial oath and immediately afterwards heralds announced the new accession.

In the meantime popular interest in the new ruler is overshadowed by universal grief at the death of King Edward VII.

The beloved monarch succumbed to pneumonia which followed a bronchial attack at Buckingham palace at fifteen minutes before last midnight in the 58th year of life and the tenth year of his reign.

The grief of the dowager queen at the death of her royal husband is pathetic. Since early morning she has been in and out of the chamber, directing everything, personally placing the wealth of flowers that have been received and giving her directions with stately dignity but at the same time inconsolable. She cannot be persuaded to remain in her own room to take the rest of which she is so much in need.

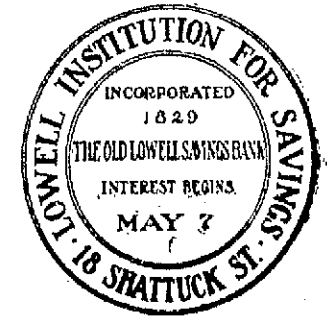

The funeral arrangements are not yet announced but the expectation of court circles is that the body of his majesty will be buried at Frogmore, nearby, where were buried the bodies of his father, mother and son. The burial will probably be delayed for ten days to allow time for the arrival of foreign dignitaries. Towards noon

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The cross-examination of Secretary Ballinger by Louis Brandeis was proceeding with but momentary renewals of the frequent clashes of yesterday before the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee this morning when there developed the most spectacular incident of the hearing.

Horace T. Jones, a special agent of the land office, who testified some time ago in support of Louis R. Glavis, arose in his place among the spectators and announced in a loud voice that he did not believe a statement made by Secretary Ballinger was true and that he desired that a witness be called to substantiate or deny what Ballinger said. The statement had to do with Jones' ability as an agent and was attributed by Secretary Ballinger to Special Agent Dixon.

When the commotion following Jones' interruption had subsided Senator Root demanded that the witness be admonished, that a repetition of his outburst would subject him to punishment for contempt.

"Mr. Jones will take notice and we will proceed," said the chairman. Secretary Ballinger said at no time had he questioned the integrity of Jones.

Brandeis next turned to remedial Alaskan legislation which Mr. Ballinger had recommended when he was land commissioner.

"I was not seeking to validate illegal or fraudulent claims," declared the secretary. "I was seeking to extend the area of claims. Any one who knows conditions in Alaska knows that it is utterly impossible to finance or operate a coal mine on placers."

He declined to make public the nature of his charge until he presents his evidence to the commissioners. But his complaint alleges that the offense was committed on the night of May 4.

MALDEN JUDGE

HAS INAUGURATED A GRADUATED FINE

BOSTON, May 7.—The graduated fine inaugurated by Judge Charles M. Bruce in the Malden district court went into effect yesterday when John J. Hurley of 399 Salem street, Lawrence was the first victim and was assessed $30 for oversteering his automobile on the Middlesex Fells Parkway.

It was claimed Hurley was going thirty-five miles an hour and Judge Bruce told the defendant he had announced for the first three weeks that he would have the speed laws on the highway enforced.

"I guess you began to feel that I wouldn't do as I said," remarked the court, "but I am starting today to impose fines of $2 per mile in excess of the twenty-mile limit. If I find this is not sufficient, I will impose fines of $3 per mile."

Hurley appealed from the fine, but later settled. The usual fine for oversteering is $10.

"The White House, Washington, D. C., May 7, 1910.

DOCTOR COMMITTED SUICIDE

BETHEL, Me., May 7.—Dr. F. T. Brown of New York, said to be a celebrated surgeon and associate of Dr. McBurney who operated upon President McKinley, committed suicide by shooting today in a field near the railroad station here.

Dr. Brown has been here the past two weeks for his health and was accompanied by an attendant. Despondency had been caused by a nervous trouble and ill health and he had been acting strangely. Taking a revolver which he received by express last night without the knowledge of his attendant, he went to the field near Alder river and shot himself in the head. Dr. Brown was about 55 years' old and has a wife and family in New York.

The members of the royal family began to arrive at Buckingham palace. King George who had been occupied throughout the morning with affairs of state and at luncheon time in company with Queen Mary, returned to the morning there was a constant stream of callers, including members of the diplomatic corps. Several wreaths from personal friends of Edward were sent to the death chamber.

Before the palace a crowd watched the coming and going until a sharp thunder and snow storm drove to cover all but a few stragglers who remained to see the changing of the guard, which ceremony was effected today without the accompaniment of a band of music.

A special service in memory of King Edward was held at St. Paul's this afternoon and was almost national in character, despite the hurried preparations. The lord mayor and the corporation of London attended in state while all the departments of state, the navy and the army were represented. High officials in all ranks of society were in the congregation. The service was that used upon the occasion of Queen Victoria's death.

At the day progressed the sentiment expressed in the familiar phrase, "The king is dead, long live the king," seemed to influence the crowd who early in the afternoon thousands who had remained for hours within the vicinity of Buckingham palace shifted to the streets adjoining St. James' palace.

From the standpoint of popular interest, from the standpoint of the street, centered in the anticipated arrival of the new monarch and the privy councillors and the ceremony of proclamation giving the empire a new king.

King George, Queen Mary and two of their sons, Prince Edward and Prince Albert, who were to be crowned soon to become the prince of Wales, spent an hour at Buckingham palace. They are the only members of the family who have yet seen Alexandra. All other callers of the royal family have been received by the Princess Victoria.

It is announced that the new king will move to Windsor castle next Thursday. The council met in the throne room at St. James' palace under the presidency of the Earl of Crew, who officiated in the absence of Viscount Southampton, the lord president of the council. The new monarch was given the title of King George V.

The king, who had driven over from Marlborough house, waited in a room adjoining the council chamber while the long formalities leading up to the official proclamation were proceeding. Today's ceremony and in his 44th year the new monarch will be crowned by the archbishop of Canterbury at Westminster Abbey on June 26.

Official Proclamation
The text of the official proclamation follows:
"Whereas it has pleased Almighty God to call to his mercy our late sovereign, Edward VII. of blessed and glorious memory, by whose death the British empire and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland is solely and rightfully come to the high and mighty Prince George Frederick Ernest Albert, we, therefore, the lords spiritual and temporal of this realm, being here assembled with his late majesty's privy council with members of other principal gentlemen of quality, with the lord mayor, aldermen and citizens of London do now hereby with one voice consent of tongue and heart to publish and proclaim that the high and mighty Prince George Frederick Ernest Albert is now by the death of our late sovereign of happy memory become our only lawful and rightful liege lord, George, by the grace of God, king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, defender of the faith, emperor of India, to whom we do acknowledge all faith and loyalty, and do hereby with all hearty and humble affection, beseeching God, by whom all kings and queens do reign, to bless the royal Prince George, with long and happy years to reign over us."

PRIVY COUNCIL MEETING

A BRILLIANT AFFAIR

LONDON, May 7.—The meeting of the privy council was a brilliant function. The king wore the uniform of an admiral and was surrounded by a large gathering of councillors all in full dress and wearing the ribbons of their orders. The lord mayor of the city of London was also present. The councillors having acquitted the king with the completion of the proclamation his majesty entered the council chamber and signed the proclamation under which he confirmed in their offices those who had held appointments under his father at the time of the king's death.

King George delivered a brief but earnest address. He exhibited deep emotion as he announced his determination to endeavor under the guidance of God to maintain the high traditions of the British court and to fulfill to the best of his abilities the great trust reposed in him.

The lord chancellor, Lord Loreburne, administered the oath to the king and swore allegiance to the new sovereign, at the office which his majesty returned. The ministers kissed the king's hand. The councillors upon being reappointed in turn took the oath of allegiance and kissed the king's hand. The king then retired.

The king left St. James' palace on his return to Marlborough house at 6 o'clock, having been absent for the ceremony just one hour. The marked lack of display in the conduct of the ceremony was striking. A single carriage occupied by the sovereign and new monarch was the only vehicle driven to and from St. James' palace. There was no military escort and the only decoration which the monarch wore was the order of the garter.

In fact the lord mayor and city aldermen furnished the most spectacular element of the ceremony. While his father was signing the proclamation the young Prince of Wales stood on a temporary scaffolding behind the wall of Marlborough house and eagerly came into view.

Owing to the late hour at which the formalities were completed by the privy council and the impossibility of distributing the proclamation to the various centers in time to permit simultaneous proclaiming ceremonies, the proclamation of King George's accession by herald and pursuivants was postponed until late in the afternoon.

In addressing the privy council, King George said that his emotion was too deep to permit him to say more than a few words. He recalled the declaration of his father on the similar occasion to the effect that so long as there was breath in his body he would strive to promote the best interests of his people.

The new monarch declared that his father's promise had been amply fulfilled and that it would be his own duty to endeavor under God to pursue the same high aim. He referred gratefully to the evidence of sympathy from all parts of the empire and said that he was thankful to feel that at all times he would have the assistance of the queen in the discharge of the duties of his office.

ROOSEVELT ISSUES STATEMENT ON DEATH OF KING
STOCKHOLM, May 7.—Former President Roosevelt issued the following today: "I am deeply grieved and know that all Americans will be deeply grieved at the death of his majesty, King Edward VII."

"We feel most profound sympathy for the British people for their loss and in America keenly appreciated King Edward's personal good will toward us which he so frequently and so effectively showed and we are well aware of the high regard in which his subjects throughout the British empire while all foreign nations have learned to see in the king a ruler whose great abilities and especially his tact, his judgment and his unflinching kindness of nature rendered him particularly fit to work for international peace and justice."

"Let me repeat that I am sure that all American people feel at this time the deepest and most sincere sympathy for his family and his nation."

Mr. Roosevelt also sent a personal telegram to the doyen of queen.

EXPRESSIONS OF SYMPATHY FROM THE DIPLOMATS
WASHINGTON, May 7.—King Edward's death called for numerous expressions of sympathy and appreciation of his ability as a ruler from various members of the diplomatic corps, cabinet officers, congressmen and prominent government officials here.

President Taft immediately called his condolences to Queen Alexandra, declaring therein his appreciation of those high qualities which made the life of the late king so potent an influence toward peace and justice among the nations.

Secretary of State Knox in a cablegram to the American embassy at London conveyed to the British government the sympathy of the president, the government and the people of the United States and in speaking of the king, said: "The people of the United States are sure to feel for their British kinsman deep sympathy in the loss of a life, tactful and kindly ruler, King Edward VII. had a better will than any man of his time."

ST. JOHNS, N. F., May 7.—Bound on her maiden voyage from London to the Great Lakes, the steamer Normandy, commanded by Captain Hawthorne, was lost in a dense fog near Cape Race. The Normandy in addition to a cargo of pig iron, carried a number of passengers, including 31 women, all of whom were saved.

The Normandy struck on Great Island, near Bay Bulls, some 20 miles south of St. Johns, during a thick fog at midnight. An hour later the steamer had sunk in 25 fathoms of water, having backed off the shoal. Only a few details of the wreck had been received here up to noon. It is known, however, that after the first shock of striking the rocky reef off Great Island officers of the steamer quickly calmed the fears of the passengers and preserved admirable discipline among the crew. The steamer's boats were lowered in good order and all on board were safely landed at St. Mary's, the women receiving first attention.

GOVERNOR FORT

Denies Request for Extradition of J. Ogden Armour

TRENTON, N. J., May 7.—Gov. Fort today refused the request of Prosecutor Garven of Hudson county for a requisition on the governor of Illinois for the extradition of J. Ogden Armour, a director of the National Packing Co., who is under indictment in Hudson county with other officers and directors of packing companies, on a charge of conspiracy to unlawfully enhance the cost of meat through the creation of an artificial scarcity of the same.

Gov. Fort in refusing to grant the requisition gave out a long opinion in which he sets forth the reason for his refusal. The governor points out first of all that in order for extradition to be asked for it was necessary that the person whose extradition was desired be a fugitive from justice and further that it was essential that the accused person was in fact in the state of New Jersey at the time of the commission of the alleged offense.

The governor says the only evidence before him of the presence in New Jersey of Mr. Armour at or about the time of the commission of the alleged offense was his presence in Hoboken in March, 1905, to take passage from that city to Europe and again in June, 1909, upon his return from Europe. The governor adds that the proof before him is barren of any facts warranting an inference that Mr. Armour was in Hoboken for any other purpose than the taking of passage to Europe and returning therefrom.

There are other applications pending before Gov. Fort for the extradition of others connected with the meat packing companies in the west but when the hearing was sought by counsel for the packers the Armour case was rejected as a test one and a hearing was given upon that alone. Whether applications for extradition will now be pressed in the cases of the other packers will depend upon Prosecutor Garven's view.

International affairs and this influence was always found on the side of peace and justice.

Secretary of the Navy Meyer said: "The sudden death of the king of England causes a great shock to the world. His diplomatic influence as ruler of a great empire has always been in the interest of peace and progress."

THE EPISCOPAL CHURCHES

HOLD REQUIEM SERVICES

BOSTON, May 7.—In the numerous mill centers in New England where there are English colonies, the news of the passing of King Edward was received with undisguised sorrow. Many of the Episcopal churches in Boston and other cities will hold requiem and memorial services on the day of the funeral. The sovereign of England is the temporal head of the Anglican church and on account of the close relationship of that body with the Episcopal influence in this country it is customary to observe the death of the British ruler.

In an interview, Rev. Father Charles Neale Field, of this city, superior of the English order of St. John, the Evangelist in this country, said of King Edward:

"I remember one morning when I was a lad at school excitement prevailing everywhere and a great race to the station where we boys saw and cheered lustily our future king, then Albert Edward, prince of Wales. He was returning from his wedding trip to Windsor."

"I always felt that anything said against him in his younger days was unfair because he was the only man in England who could not defend himself. I feel that as a king he has shown himself a model in family life and a sincere upholder of the church. This is shown in one of his last acts. When it was proposed that he should nominate as bishop of Lincoln, a clergyman of the church who has been conspicuous for his extreme vagueness of faith, the king said: 'No, I am defender of the faith.'"

Quite a number of Boston business houses, particularly those with English affiliations will be draped in mourning for thirty days.

When King Edward as Baron Rossmore was in Boston in 1880 he met freely with the Hon. Charles Sumner and other famous Bostonians. He called for home from Portland.

THE BOARD OF POLICE THIS AFTERNOON gave the local innholders leave to withdraw on their petition for the restoration of the fourth class liquor license.

Several weeks ago the hotel keepers, through their counsel, William J. Bent, petitioned the board to restore the 4th class license and a hearing was held. When the hotel licenses were granted and only a first class as innholders was granted, it was a foregone conclusion that the board would refuse to grant the petition, but a formal decision was not given out until this afternoon.

AT WILLOW DALE PITCHED BATTLE

Chas. E. Bunker Leases
Popular Resort

Detective Killed By Volley of Shots.

Mr. Charles E. Bunker of the firm of Bunker and Hennessy, the well known amusement promoters, has leased Willow Dale and will personally conduct the affairs of that popular resort during the coming season. Mr. Bunker followed his transaction relative to getting possession of Willow Dale by purchasing the large steamer boat Mascoupee from the Street Railway company and that larger boat will be used this summer to convey passengers from Lakeview to Willow Dale and return, the smaller boat Willow Dale to be used for emergency trips. Henceforth the Mascoupee will run from the landing at Lakeview to the landing at Willow Dale, the other boat using the smaller landing at the entrance to Willow Dale. Zoller skating will be abandoned and the skating rink will be devoted to dancing. Mr. Bunker expects to open on May 25th and is formulating elaborate plans for the summer season.

STROUSEVILLE, O., May 7.—A pitched battle this afternoon between fifty men, alleged to be strikers, formerly employed at the Labele Ironworks in this city and two private detectives in the employ of the iron concern, resulted in the death of one of the detectives, John Reardon of Pittsburg. He was killed by a volley of shots from the strikers. Today's disorder is reported to have been caused by the strikers' sympathizers who followed and cornered the detectives near the edge of the town.

The workmen employed in the Labele Ironworks plant have been on strike for over six months and there has been much disorder.

WOMAN HELD
WAS SUSPECTED OF HAVING STOLEN GOODS

A woman who resides in Plain street was detained in the store of the A. G. Pollard company this morning on suspicion of having stolen articles from that store. The police were notified and after the woman had been searched it was found that she had a number of articles which she admitted having stolen from the O'Donnell Dry Goods Co. There was nothing on her person which had been taken from the Pollard store.

President Kelley of the O'Donnell company was notified and when he learned of the circumstances in connection with the case he decided not to press the charge and she was allowed to go to her home.

A very pretty dancing party was held in the town hall last night and the hall was crowded to its utmost capacity, so much so as to make dancing uncomfortable. The hall was very prettily decorated with wall flowers, apple blossoms and palms. On the left of the hall was the matrons' corner which was prettily arranged, and the matrons were kept busy receiving the many guests. At 8 o'clock a concert program was started and lasted until 3.30 when general dancing started to the music of the Colonial orchestra of Lowell. At 10.30 an intermission of 15 minutes was given at which time ice cream and cake were served in the lower hall. A favor- able and assembly hall. A favor- able and assembly hall. Queen Alexandra

WASHINGTON, May 7.—President Taft, upon learning of the death of King Edward, wrote the following message of condolence to her majesty, Queen Alexandra, which was cabled to Buckingham palace last night:

"On the sad occasion of the death of King Edward, I offer to your majesty and to your son, his illustrious successor, my most profound sympathy of the people and of the government of the United States in this, their national bereavement. To this I add the expression of your majesty and to the new king of my own personal sympathy and of my appreciation of those high qualities which made the life of the late king so potent an influence toward peace and justice among the nations."

The president also sent his military aid, Capt. Archibald Ruit, to the British embassy to express his condolences on the death of the king to Ambassador Bryce.

Ambassador Bryce received an official announcement of the death of the king from the British foreign office, following a series of messages during the day advising him of his majesty's grave condition.

The ambassador appeared deeply affected and declared he would make a statement today. Messages of condolence were received at the embassy from members of the cabinet and diplomatic corps.

Secretary of State Knox addressed the following cablegram to the American embassy in London:

"Apart from the message which the president has sent to Queen Alexandra you will make to the British government appropriate expression of the sympathy of the president, government and people of the United States in the loss by their British kinsmen of a ruler so beloved and so distinguished among the nations for the influence of his kindness and wisdom toward all that he met."

TIED OF LIVING CHILD DESERTED

Boy Was Sent to the Lyman School

BOSTON, May 7.—Little "Charlie" Blanchard, the 14 year old boy placed on probation less than a month ago in the juvenile court on two charges of larceny, who was reintegrated shortly after midnight yesterday morning on a charge of burglary, was sent to the Lyman school for an indefinite period when he appeared in the city police court's juvenile session yesterday.

When arrested he attempted to end his life by swallowing mercurial tablets, but was prevented by an officer and later in a cell at the Lagrange street station made a second ineffective attempt by trying to hang himself with a piece of twine tied about his neck.

When asked why he was so anxious to end his life, the boy answered carelessly: "Oh, I'm sick and tired of living. What's the use of living, anyway? It don't get you anything."

Young Blanchard first came into the hands of the police last when he was arrested charged with the larceny of a coat and mail box of a downtown apartment store where he was employed as an office boy. He then stole some valuable tools from his father, who lives in Jamaica Plain.

He was paroled on both these charges in the custody of the probation officer, but ran away from his home last Monday morning and was apprehended after an abnormal desire for excitement and crime.

According to the story he told Lieut. Canney in the police station, he has slept since then in the alley and has been traveling with a man about 25 years of age, giving the name of Frank Wilson of Syracuse, N. Y.

He said that Wilson convinced him that he could commit thefts without being caught if he only was cool about it, and that he had been assisted through the transaction of the Simmons case, and that he had been arrested and released on bail for the same reason. He said that Wilson had been arrested and released on bail for the same reason.

WANT MORE PAY

NEW YORK, May 7.—A threatening march of 600 strikers on the electric work of the New York Central railroad was begun today from Hastings-on-Hudson, the men, armed with clubs, heading up the tracks with the electrician's line to the strike movement. The men said they were unorganized and that the strike was simply a popular movement among them to get an increase of 25 cents a day in wages as was recently granted the maintenance men.

Wolfgang Held Them Asked for by Ex-Mayor

DIAMOND NOTES

Still at New Bedford and likely to win again.

That Lowell line-up looks pretty good now. With Orday back in the game and Boutins added to the staff of pitchers, matters ought to break right.

A New Bedford fan knocked Burke's cap off and Jesse buried a ball at him. Jesse has always been there with a come-back whenever assaulted and he isn't fussy as to what he comes back with.

Games next week at Spaulding park: Monday, Lawrence; Tuesday, Haverhill; Wednesday, Fall River; Thursday, Fall River; Saturday, Haverhill.

Fred Lake isn't doing so badly when one compares his team with the fellows in the other yard.

Benny Bowcock and his wife witnessed the awful slaughter from the grandstand. Benny looked as though the game pained him more than the awful slam he received on the side of the head in Lynn, says a Fall River scribe.

Secretary Morse has instructed the umpires that if a pitcher is slugged, he is considered to be just as much out of the game as if he had pitched and been relieved. The umpires will also be on the lookout for punk balls this season, and catchers will be required to carry gloves, mask and protection to the bench with them, thereby leaving the ground about the plate perfectly clear.—Dan Smith in the Brockton Times.

A Storekeeper Says:

"A lady came into my store lately and said: 'I have been using a New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove all winter in my apartment. I want one now for my summer home. I think these oil stoves are wonderful. If only women knew what a comfort they are, they would all have one. I spoke about my stove to a lot of my friends, and they were astonished. They thought that there was small and smoke from an oil stove, and that it heated a room just like any other stove. I told them of my experience, and one after another they got one, and now not one of them would give hers up for five times its cost.'"

The lady who said this had thought an oil stove was all right for quickly heating milk for a baby, or boiling a kettle of water, or to make coffee quickly in the morning, but she never dreamed of using it for difficult or heavy cooking. Now—she knows.

Do you really appreciate what a New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove means to you? No more coal to carry, no more coming to the dinner table so tired that you can't eat. Just light a Perfection Stove and immediately the heat from an intense blue flame shoots up to the bottom of the kettle or oven. But up to the bottom of the kettle or oven, no small, no outside heat, no drudgery in the kitchen where one of these stoves is used.

FOR A SANER FOURTH.

Already in a great many cities throughout the country arrangements are being made for the celebration of Independence day. Here in Lowell we are not likely to have any official celebration, but in spite of this the day will be observed in much the usual way.

For some years past the press and the police authorities throughout the country have been endeavoring to bring about a more sane observance of the day, to eliminate the use of explosives and every other feature that is dangerous. An effort is also being made to suppress the nerve-racking noise, but this would largely be remedied by the prohibition of firecrackers and toy pistols. The young people will insist upon the use of fishhorns, cowbells, torpedoes and fire crackers, unless met with firmness by the police.

The problem is one involving much difficulty, and unless the people generally are educated to the enormity of the harm done throughout the entire country as a result of accidents, they are not likely to respond to any great extent to the movement for reform. Strict police regulations are necessary as the first step and a few arrests or prosecutions in each city would serve to convince the people that the police are sincere. There is no good purpose served by allowing boys to blow their own heads off, to start fires or in other ways to give a lot of needless annoyance to the public in general. The Fourth can be fittingly observed in a thoroughly enjoyable and patriotic manner without descending to antics that would lead a stranger to believe that about half the population had suddenly become insane.

DEATH OF KING EDWARD OF ENGLAND.

The death of King Edward has spread a feeling of gloom over the entire British empire and throughout the entire world there is sympathy and sorrow for the loss of a sovereign who, during his reign, had proved himself to be a wise and conservative ruler, a friend of humanity, the promoter of peace and who sincerely desired and labored for the best interests of his people.

The United States especially has profound sympathy with the British nation in the loss of its popular sovereign.

King Edward during his comparatively short reign had given evidence of considerable ability as a statesman and a diplomat. He established friendly relations with Russia, France and the United States, where before there had been a feeling of distrust if not of real enmity. He also in a great measure improved the relations existing between his own country and Germany, two nations between which there seems to be a spirit of jealousy that is liable at any time to assume a very serious aspect.

The death of King Edward at this time will be deeply deplored by the liberal party and the people of Ireland, because they looked to him to settle the political controversy between the house of commons and the lords, a controversy upon the right solution of which so much depended for the democracy of the nation.

It is a well known fact that King Edward was in sympathy with the liberals and had been for years in favor of the principal reforms advocated by the liberal party, but in accordance with the custom of the reigning sovereign, he kept aloof from the political arena, taking no part in the controversy unless called upon to exercise the royal prerogative in the usual manner. It was generally believed that he would meet the demands of the prime minister to create a majority in the house of lords favorable to the curtailment of the powers of the upper house either by creating the necessary number of peers or by prevailing upon the lords to concur with the commons in passing the measure.

The question now in the minds of a great many people is, what effect King Edward's death will have upon the reform measures that are pending. This is a matter that cannot be answered at this time. The outside world has had little from which to judge the new king so far as his ability or political sympathies are concerned. His training was largely in the navy where he attained high honors on his merits. It must be remembered that his elder brother, Clarence, was educated and trained as the future king, but his death made George Frederick prince of Wales and heir to the throne to which by inheritance he has now acceded.

In matters of military training the new king is well equipped for whatever duties may come before him. But we are not so sure that he will prove equally competent to act with ability on matters of political moment or questions bearing upon the welfare and progress of the people. Still, he is comparatively a young man, he will have good advisers and the great responsibility coming so suddenly upon him may develop in him powers of statesmanship that may astonish the world.

A natural consequence of this plunging the nation in sorrow in the midst of a political crisis will be to cause a great deal of sympathy for the royal family and to counteract any opposition that might have existed against the aristocracy or even royalty itself. This will help to weaken the opposition that threatened the peers. For some months to come the patriotic spirit of the English people will be at high tension and there will be little probability of any move against the aristocracy which must in the long run be regarded as the chief remaining prop to royalty. After the lapse of some months, however, the tendency of public sentiment will be back to the conditions that prevailed before the king's death and the old problems of reforming the house of lords, radical changes in financial policies, and the granting of home rule to Ireland will again press themselves for consideration of parliament. They are among the problems that are likely to test the political sagacity of the new king.

King Edward a short time ago remarked that he was the last king who would sit undisturbed on the throne of England. He undoubtedly foresaw the growing strength of the British democracy and the demand for reform threatening the last remnants of feudalism in overthrowing landlord extortion, hereditary titles and ultimately perhaps royalty itself. This no doubt was the king's vision of the future and of what may ultimately fall to the lot of his successors on the throne, but how, when or by what means, none can venture to predict.

SEEN AND HEARD

It is not de rigueur in Lowell, N. Y., to appear on the streets in pajamas. Arthur G. Brown, of No. 20 Poplar street, very nearly forgot it early in the morning. When his mother-in-law, Mrs. J. Strum, awoke him with the news that a burglar was just leaving by the front gate, Brown looked through the open window and saw that Mrs. Strum's news was true. For an instant he thought of giving chase as he was but he caught himself just in time.

But when Brown reached for his trousers they were missing from the accustomed place. Likewise his coat and his shoes. The burglar was far down the street and Brown covered the distance between the bedside and the wardrobe in one bound. Thank Heaven, his Sunday clothes were in the same room with him!

Only the Sunday clothes weren't. Once more Brown looked from the open window and his worst fears were realized. The burglar had his Sunday clothes as well as his others; not even a waistcoat had been overlooked. Then Brown called up the police. While they were on their way to the house Brown found that his watch was gone, and with it $19 in money. For the first time Brown looked from the window. The street was empty.

When the police arrived Brown wore an air of chagrin above his pajamas. Later added a smile over the fact, although it had been costly, he had still done nothing to offend the conventionalities.

The baby of the family went to New York to break ground for a fortune. He was the youngest of the family. Lowell in his estimation was a slow old town and he allowed there was electricity enough in him to keep up with New York competition. By all accounts he is doing well and is living on the fat of the land despite the fact that a loving sister at home thought for a moment that he was existing on pea soup. To the first letter he wrote home he added a postscript. He used the letters P. JOSEPHINE TO NAPOLEON

Rest for thou art weary, while time cydells close,
I'll be the bird that loves, that loves the rose,
And warbles, and warbles o'er thy sweet, thy sweet repose.

For thou hast such such music flows From those fond lips as o'er thee throws

The only calm Napoleon knows— The only calm Napoleon knows.

My heart is troubled against my better will, Strange fears arise as if of coming ill. Wouldst bid, wouldst bid my trembling, trembling soul be still?

No more to breathe in these loved regions! No more to charm Napoleon's dream! Grief breaks the heart of Josephine. Grief breaks the heart of Josephine.

NAPOLEON TO JOSEPHINE
Chase from thy mind these idle fears, Wipe from thine eyes those pearly tears.

Napoleon will not from thee part, Napoleon will not break thy heart, My Josephine, my Josephine.

REFRAIN.
Dearest than life itself to me, Companion of my destiny. The only one I ever loved, The only tongue that ever moved, My stubborn will, my Josephine.

I loved thee when thy lovely face First charmed me with its pensive grace, I loved thee when they soon did claim His father's sword in thy sweet name, My Josephine, my Josephine.

They bade me cast my love aside, They bade me take another bride! Napoleon's lost benefit of thee, Napoleon never can be free From Josephine, sweet Josephine!

Two Coney Island waiters were talking about short changing.

"It's bad to take a raw chance," said one, "because you can never tell what will happen if you're caught. The best pickings I ever had I didn't take any chances on. It was last summer at the Seattle exposition. I was selling tickets at a 15-cent attraction. Every time a guy shoved in a $2 bill for one or two tickets, I counted out carefully five or ten cents in silver too much. If he bought two tickets I'd lay out 30 cents in silver. Nine men out of ten would grab the change and beat it, thinking they had beat me out of a dime. They seldom remembered that I had a dollar more in give them, they were in such a hurry to get away with my dime."

The tenth man, who generally fell for the game, was generally honest enough to shove my dime back, and I seldom lost anything. I made $10 a day besides my pay, all without taking a chance."

Patrons of a hotel dining room stopped eating while a piping hot boiled potato of extraordinary size was carried across the room and set before a man seated at a centre table.

"Excuse it, please," said the waiter, "but the manager has ordered that the time he is here he should eat in his room and send one down just in time to have it cooked for dinner."

Yes, they're good potatoes, but that isn't what he brought a sackful up from Oklahoma. He is in the potato business and he eats his own potatoes as an advertisement. A potato of that size carried across the room held up high at arm's length is going to attract attention anywhere. It makes folks ask questions and pretty soon the reputation of those potatoes as enterprising as this Oklahoma chap. Every year an apple grower from Oregon plays the same game. He brings sacks of his best apples along and has them served in styles that are bound to make people look."

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

Four full shows will be given at the Opera House today, starting at 1.30, 3, 7 and 9.30, and what is proving to be the best laughing show of the current vaudeville season is the Opera House will be given. Litta, Perry & Gillette in the laughable sketch, "A Night at the Club"; Marlow and Plunkett as the teacher and deaf student, and W. J. the audience in a rural monologue keep the dancing of Bessie and Clifton, while a big hit and one of the features of an excellent program. Tomorrow's concert will be given both afternoon and evening, and a new program will be offered which will include Litta, Perry & Gillette, W. J. Holmes, Katherine Stowell and all new pictures. Performances will be given afternoon and evening, commencing at 1.30 and 6.30. Commencing Monday another of the big bills being offered at this theatre will be seen and one of the big things of the program will be Dare Devil Gregg, known as the cycle maniac in sensational looping the loop act. Other big features will also be seen. The Opera House are five and ten cents, and the wonder is how so much can be given for the money.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

Today is the last chance to see Nelson and Milledge in their comedy sketch, "Glass Put In." Lovers of comedy should not miss it. Francis Wood is doing a fine rolling hoop act that cannot help but amuse the audience. Miss Conduin Bessette is making a hit singing "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly?" and travelogues of the different countries are shown. A continuous performance is given Saturday and Sunday. Admission 5 and 10 cents.

THEATRE VOYONS

Everyone who has seen "The Penitent of Florence" at the Theatre Voyons cordially endorses the claim of its makers, who say it is the best sentimental picture in months. The story is touching and the acting is well done and the staging, excepting the good. The biograph subject, "The Gold Seekers," is a clever mining story, one that holds the attention all of the time. The portrait is a really laughable, bright and witty comedy, and one of the best of its kind. The usual concert of the best pictures and the cleverest songs will be given in the quality way that has given this house the lead all the time.

STAR THEATRE

A strong bill of motion pictures, accompanied by two popular illustrated songs, is being presented at the Star Theatre, and for the admission of five cents, which also includes a seat, there is no better show in Lowell. "The Uprising of the Utes," is a classic Indian picture, historically correct. It is very thrilling. A biograph picture, "The Final Settlement," is intensely dramatic. There are several comic subjects. The show is "the biggest and best in Lowell."

EMPIRE THEATRE

The clown who is one of the Winkley Kress Trio at the Empire theatre plays his part well. He is a clown in every sense of the word—performing acrobatic feats and at the same time giving to them that touch of comedy for which one is looking from such a character. Whitney and Young still hold the attention of the house in their black face comedy sketch and seem to be much appreciated. Miss Vellala in her dancing act will also be here for the remaining part of this week.

The fine selection of the pictures present all sorts of situations and are made up of such a variety of subjects that everyone is sure to find several pictures for which they have a special liking.

The usual concert will be given tomorrow.

CHOIR FESTIVAL

The committees from the Middlesex Women's club and the College club, who are arranging the choir festival soon to take place, wish to express their thanks for the ready and hearty response to all the churches and to the call for co-operation in behalf of the playground movement. It is a matter of regret to the committees that for lack of room in Associate hall they could not accommodate the entire number of singers who are willing to take part in the program.

It is hoped that the completed program may be before the public by the middle of next week.

FOR NEW STREETS

Board of Trade Committee, Starts Plan

The board of trade committee recently appointed to consider the opportunities for developing new streets along lines which will redound to the permanent benefit of the city, met her first meeting yesterday afternoon, in the rooms of the Old Lowell National bank.

The entire membership of the committee was present, including George Bowers, J. Harry Boardman, Arnold A. Byam, Herford N. Elliott, Robert F. Harden and John A. McKenna.

It was voted to meet again next Friday at the same place at 4 o'clock and it was voted to send invitations to a number of men who own large acreage in the Andover street section to meet with the committee and discuss the possibilities.

The Andover street section was taken up first and the need of new streets in this section was pointed out.

Between the section, whose farther boundary is Wentworth avenue, and the city line is a very large territory which is now being developed and where the lines between new streets will have great importance relative to development in the far future when traffic will be much heavier between Lowell and North Tewksbury and Andover as well as Lawrence.

The committee desires to get the ideas of the land owners in the vicinity as a whole.

City Engineer Bowers called attention to West Centralville as the best laid out section of Lowell.

The streets are laid out so as to converge conveniently from all directions, upon Allen street bridge. City Engineer Bowers declared that there is up better laid out section in the whole country than this one. To obtain the consent of land owners to similar development in all sections of the city is the work of this committee.

Oaklands District

That section of Rogers street from Nesmith to Oaklands square was discussed and the need of widening the street appeared apparent to all. At the present time the street can be widened only a little, but in the long run it will be built upon and the difficulties increased a thousandfold when the need of widening is even more pressing. The committee voted to report to the board of trade its determination to urge upon the city council the advisability of immediate action and commissioning Alvan Dymally, a member of the committee, to secure the proper channels for obtaining favorable action.

Secretary McKenna was requested to write to the Boston authorities for a copy of the ordinance of that city governing the laying out of new streets, the understanding being that Boston has a law requiring somewhat the same ideas as the committee has in mind. Before the committee completes its endeavors it is hoped that all sections of the city may become interested in the project and that a unified plan of development may be adopted.

The matter of widening Lawrence street and building a street and concrete bridge over the brook was discussed.

At the present time from Rogers street to the corner of Andrews street, Lawrence street is but 41 feet wide and there is a great deal of traffic passing over that section. It is contiguous to the U. S. Cartridge and the U. S. Bunting companies and the Strling and Waterhead mills.

Paul Butler has intimated that he would be willing to give the land bordering on the street over to have it widened. This would provide a 60 foot front on both sides of the bridge for some distance. The project would have in view the ultimate widening of Lawrence street for the whole of the 41 foot width.

IN POLICE COURT THE STATE TAX

Several Offenders Sentenced by Judge Hadley Today

Promises to be the Largest in History of State

William F. Higgins, who, according to Probation Officer Slattery, was an exemplary young man up to about a year and a half ago when he started to drink, was this morning sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory at Concord after being found guilty of stealing two watches, two pins and $10 in money from Mrs. Mary Smith of 374 Central street and the fraudulent conveyance of mortgaged property belonging to the Bentley Jewelry Co. Joseph E. Loughran appeared for the defendant. Lawyer Rogers represented the Bentley Jewelry Co. and Deputy Downey conducted the prosecution for the government.

According to the testimony offered Higgins had been keeping company with the daughter of Mrs. Smith and was living at the Smith house in Central street, Mrs. Smith keeping a few lodgers. It is alleged that Higgins' presence was obnoxious at times and after being ordered out of the house several months ago was allowed to return, but his actions in the house caused Mrs. Smith to order him out of the house again several weeks ago.

Later, it is alleged that he came to the house and offered to sell a lady's gold watch to Mrs. Smith. He said that he was hard up and wanted some money and she gave him $10. It is claimed that Higgins purchased the watch on the installment plan, having paid $1 down, promising to pay the remainder in weekly payments.

When Higgins was ordered out of the house he retained a key to one of the doors and it is alleged that while Mrs. Smith and her daughter were out of the house one day last week he entered by aid of the key and besides taking the watch which he had sold to Mrs. Smith, took another watch and $10 in money.

Mrs. Mary Smith, the first witness, testified that she kept several lodgers in the house and worked every day in the mill. After explaining how Higgins had roomed at her house and that she had ordered him out because of his actions she told of his coming to her and offering the watch for sale. She said that she did not really care for the watch but in order to help out the young man gave him the money. She then turned the watch over to her daughter to put in a safe place. She did not see the watch again until she saw it at the police station. She said that she had $10 in a bureau drawer which she was going to pay an insurance man, but when she went to look for it it was gone.

Annie Smith, a daughter of the first witness, identified a watch offered her by Deputy Downey as the one purchased by her mother and said that she had placed it in a box in a photograph cabinet. There was also missing a gold watch belonging to her which she had placed in a trunk.

John J. Walsh, who arrested Higgins, said that in searching the defendant he found a key which fitted one of the doors of the Smith house in his possession. Witness said that Higgins had said that the watch had not been out of his possession since he had bought it from the Bentley Jewelry Company. Neither Miss Smith's watch nor the money was found.

Probation Officer Slattery when consulted by the court said that up to a year and a half ago that Higgins was an exemplary young man, but about that time he took to drinking, refused to work and lived as best he could. No defense was offered, Higgins was found guilty and sentenced to the reformatory at Concord. He appeared and was held under $500 bonds for the superior court.

Refused to Come to Court

Joseph Hackett, a young man who was arrested yesterday on a warrant charging him with assault and battery on a foreign resident last Saturday night at the corner of Charles and Central streets, appeared in court, pleaded not guilty, to the complaint and asked that his case be continued till next Monday. Counsel for the government said that he would be busy on Monday and the case was continued till Tuesday.

In recognizing the witnesses it was found that one of the witnesses who had been summoned had failed to appear in an appearance and Warrant Officer Frank Goodwin explained to the court that when he served the summons on the man yesterday the latter said he would not go into court and the court could go to a hot climate if it didn't find the man in which he acted.

Judge Hadley immediately ordered a warrant issued for the man's arrest, and the chances are that he will appear in court before Tuesday morning.

Drunken Offenders

Adelaide E. Bickford, an elderly woman, was released from jail yesterday morning after serving four months sentence at that institution, only to be arrested yesterday afternoon, and in court this morning she received a sentence of five months in jail.

George M. Baker was given a suspended sentence of six months in jail, but he violated the conditions of his probation and the suspension was revoked and he will spend the next six months in the Thornehill street.

Three men were imposed for drunkenness, and there were three first offenders, who were fined $2 each.

HELD IN $200

MAN ACCUSED OF SELLING LIQUOR TO PUPILS

FRANKLIN, N. H., May 7.—George Dargie was in the Franklin police court yesterday charged with the illegal sale of liquor. He pleaded not guilty. The complaint was made by principal George L. Plimpton of Tilton seminary at Tilton.

Clifton D. Colby, 18, of Andover and John C. Roberts, 19, of Saco, Me., two seminary pupils, testified to purchasing whisky of Dargie. One alleged sale they said, took place back of Sawyer's block on Central street, and the other near the grocery store of Comins & Proulx on Franklin street, where Dargie is employed as a clerk. Dargie is 29 years old and was born in Franklin. In his defence he denied absolutely ever having seen either Colby or Roberts before and selling them liquor. Judge Towne found probable cause and bound Dargie over in $250 for appearance before the October term of the superior court. Bail was furnished.

LAWRENCE, May 7.—The annual convention of the New England branch of the International Ironmolders union of America was opened in this city yesterday and will continue for three days.

President Timothy Donovan of the local union presided at the opening session. There were about 100 delegates present. An increased attendance is anticipated today.

The delegates were welcomed in a characteristic address by Mayor Wm. P. White.

The session yesterday forenoon was taken up with routine business. National President Joseph Valentine of Cincinnati is expected to arrive today.

Among the prominent officials here yesterday were First Business Agent Henry M. Donnelly of Hingham, Second Business Agent Frank Magee of Worcester and International Organizer William Johns of Boston.

The delegates are making their headquarters at the Hotel Needham, and a banquet will take place there this evening.

It is expected that the next convention will be held in Holyoke.

ARM FRACTURED

Sarah Molloy, of Adams street, sustained a fracture of her shoulder yesterday. She was treated at St. John's hospital.

BOSTON, May 7.—The state tax for the year will be the largest on record and will exceed that of last year by $1,000,000 or $1,500,000, according to the declaration of Norman H. White of Brookline in the house yesterday.

This statement came out in the course of Mr. White's opposition to a motion by Mr. Perry of New Bedford to substitute a resolve appropriating $85,000 for the New Bedford textile school in place of the resolve reported from ways and means, allowing $10,000 for a new building.

After debate the motion to substitute prevailed on a voice vote.

Battling Nelson in House

Battling Nelson, the ex-lightweight pugilist champion, was a guest of Speaker Walker during the debate on the first matter discussed yesterday, the bill providing for a close season on gray squirrels from Dec. 1 to the Oct. 15 following. Mr. Oliver of Athol offered an amendment to have the close season begin Nov. 15 and to prohibit the killing of more than 15 squirrels by any person in a single season.

Mr. Beal of Rockland offered an amendment to provide a permanent close season.

The bill amendment was defeated and the Oliver amendment adopted, and the bill ordered to a third reading.

A motion of Representative C. L. Carr of Boston to substitute for an adverse report a bill requiring the preservation of the Blue Hills reservation in a natural condition was lost on a rising vote, 10 to 6.

The committee on ways and means reported ought not to pass on resolves appropriating $25,000 for the establishment of a fish hatchery and $10,000 for the establishment of a farm for the propagation of game birds and animals.

Representative Saunders of Clinton presented his own petition for legislation to authorize the county of Worcester to purchase additional land for a trout stream.

Without debate, the house accepted the adverse report of the committee on mercantile affairs on the petition of Representative Dean of Wakefield for legislation to limit charges for telephone service. Mr. Dean gave notice yesterday afternoon that he would move to substitute a bill for the adverse report, but failed to do so.

Somerville Bath Houses

The bill providing for the construction of a bathhouse on the Mystic river in Somerville by the metropolitan park commission was opposed by Mr. O'Brien of Boston.

Mr. Farnell of Somerville defended the bill, saying that Somerville has never received its share of the metropolitan improvements.

Mr. Underhill of Somerville, Mr. Keene of Somerville and Mr. Ford of Lynn favored the bill and Mr. White of Rockland opposed it.

Rejection of the bill as recommended by the committee on ways and means was negatived on a voice vote.

Hagen Bill Engrossed

The Hagen antidiscrimination bill was passed to be engrossed without debate or division.

$2000 for Fish Investigation

The resolve appropriating $2000 for an investigation as to the adaptability of the public water to the rearing of food was finally passed to be engrossed, 63 to 16.

Sale of Milk in Boston

The house concurred in the adoption of an order authorizing the milk committee to investigate the sale of milk in Boston during the past week.

Direct Nominations

Without debate the Walker-Cushing direct nominations bill was passed to be engrossed in the senate yesterday.

Senator Mellon of Brookfield made a statement that he was paired yesterday in the "peaceful picketing" bill, but through a miscomprehension his pair was not recorded.

The bill for the retirement of judges of probate was put over to Monday on motion of Senator Malley. On motion of Senator Meany of Blackstone the income tax resolve was put over to Thursday, May 12.

Senator Parker of Boston, moved a perfecting amendment to the recalled "wood alcohol" bill to make it conform to the federal law as to label. It was adopted and sent to the house.

Park Bill Passed

On motion of Senator Malley of Springfield the rules were suspended and the bill giving the Springfield park commissioners the right to grant rights and privileges in lands under their control was engrossed.

Helping Out Marlboro

On motion of Senator Harvey of Waltham, the rules were suspended, the bill to allow Marlboro to raise $1000 was given its several readings, engrossed and sent to the house.

FUNERALS

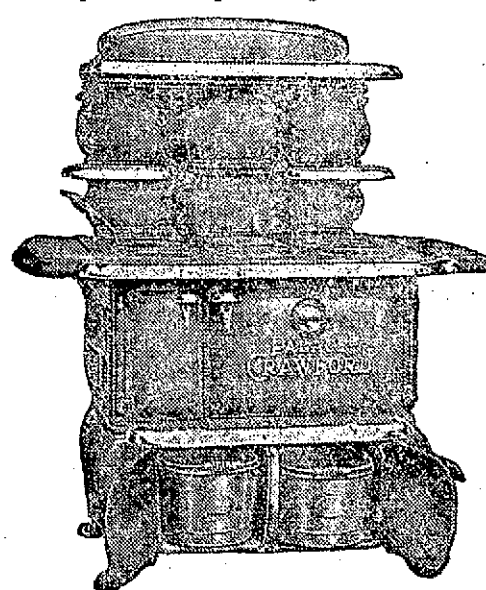

KENNEDY.—The funeral of Mrs. Bridget Kennedy took place this morning from her home, 126 Chapel street, and was largely attended. The choir rendered the Gregorian mass and there were the usual songs. The bearers were Messrs. John McKay, Dennis Cooney, Peter Kavanagh, Michael Conroy, Edward Higgins and Jeremiah Coughlin. Burial was in the Catholic cemetery, where Fr. Mullin read the prayers at the grave. The funeral was under the direction of Undertaker John P. Rogers.

Among the many floral pieces placed upon the grave, although friends were requested not to send flowers, were the following: large standing cross on base with purple ribbon, from the family; wreath of pinks, from Mrs. Bourke; spray of pinks, from Miss Jennie Lennon; cross of pinks, Miss Catherine Norris; spray of pinks, Cooney children; wreath of galax leaves with purple ribbon, a friend.

The Cooks who have used the Single Damper of the Crawford Ranges will never go back to the troublesome two-damper range

The cost of the food spoiled by mistakes in regulating the ordinary two-damper ranges amounts to a large sum.

The Single Damper of the Crawford affords absolute fire and oven control by one motion—slide the knob to "kindle," "bake" or "check," the range does the rest.

The Oven of the Crawford has cup-joint heat flues which heat everywhere alike and make it the quickest and surest of bakers.

The Two Hods (patented) in the base—one for ashes instead of the old clumsy ash pan—one for coal, is a great trouble-saving feature.

JAW DISLOCATED

GIRL WAS LAUGHING AT A JOKE

BROOKLYN, May 7.—"If two and two make four, then why is a hen?" asked one of three men of three girls, in a touring car in Jamaica avenue, and it wasn't funny at all.

The car was brought to a stop beside the curb at the five other occupants tried as best they knew how to unlock the girl's jaw, which had become dislocated. Dr. Walter H. Kerby, who happened to be passing, snapped the girl's jaw back into place.

"Oh, thank you," she said, "but wasn't that funny?" she said, "but 'One dollar please,' said the doctor, and it wasn't funny at all."

HEAVY INCREASE IN SALES

BOSTON, May 7.—The "back to the farm" movement is well under way in Massachusetts, as evidenced by the heavy increase in the sales of fertilizers and seeds during the past two months.

Some of the fertilizer companies state that the sales this spring will average between 15 and 20 per cent. over any other year, while the seed-selling business which exceeds $1,000,000 in Boston shows an increase of 10 to 15 per cent. Farming machinery and implements are also in great demand.

THIRTY-FOUR BODIES FOUND

PALOS, Ala., May 7.—Rescue parties in mine number 3 of the Palos Coal and Coke Co. are today working their way toward the 2300 foot level where it is believed the largest number of bodies will be found. Thirty-four bodies have already been found in the mine where between 100 and 150 lost their lives in Wednesday's explosion. All the reserves were hurriedly called to the slope this morning because of a smell of smoke. It is feared the mines are on fire. Government officials are in charge of the situation.

What Smartly Gowned Children are Wearing This Season

This black and white checked coat is the fashion of the season. The rather deep cuffs are also of the mode. The sailor suit this season follows the lines laid down for them ever since this costume first dawned on the scene.

costume for a girl of eight or upward. It is comfortable and does not muss and crease like a lined frock. The natural colored pongee is the best to select, for many of the dyed colorings fade in a most unattractive fashion. Particularly is this the case with the navy blue tones. Contrasting trimmings may be used on the pongee frock, but, according to Madame Mode, the soft yellows of this fabric respond more successfully to a treatment of black or cream, and a little hand embroidery on the waist is a very exclusive adornment for the pongee frock. Such work is most effective when carried out in big, bold designs with heavy silk.

The one piece model, which is really a two piece affair—waist and skirt being made separate and joined at the waist line—gives the most satisfactory results. The skirt may have plaits introduced in some modish fashion or it can be one of the scant, skimping plain affairs that are too trying for a growing girl to affect. The Gibson waist is always a becoming bodice, and the plain front serves as a fine base of operations for embroidery, but when the pongee color is thought to be unfavorable to the wearer's complexion an all-in-one bodice with gimpes and sleeves of net, lace or lingerie is a good choice.

As most young girls have pretty throats the collarless neck is to be recommended, and the newest finish for this round effect is a finely plaited frill about three inches deep, which is put on without a heading, being merely sewed inside the dress neck and turned over. The fit of such a frill to be chic must be absolutely without reproach; otherwise smartness is woefully lacking.

MUSINGS OF ELINOR HITE

THE girl who makes friends is delightful. She comes into a room like a sea breeze—fresh, laughing, nodding right and left with happy impartiality. She is ready for anything and never throws cold water on your plans.

She generally sees the funny side of things, and she has such a whole hearted way of describing them that you feel that you have seen them yourself. She does not retail gossip, though, and she does not know how to be selfless or sarcastic or bitter, and she never exaggerates to produce an impression.

She likes everybody and does not think of suspecting people of evil until they have proved themselves unworthy of her opinion.

She prefers to consider the world good and honest until it has proved itself otherwise.

She always gets along, for she has friends everywhere. And her heart is big enough to contain everybody, and she never forgets her friends, nor do they forget her.

How to Keep the Children Well

IF you want to avoid worry in the nursery learn to keep your children well," says a noted physician who makes a specialty of the treatment of children's diseases. That the trouble in rearing a family, said this specialist in an interview recently, comes from sickness in the nursery. Sturdy children, poor little things, are a constant source of worry to themselves, to their brothers and sisters and, above all, to their mothers.

Squabbling, peevishness, bad temper, screaming, obstinacy, milkiness, backwardness, perversity, are more often the outcome of want of health than an evidence of wickedness. A nursery full of really healthy children will no doubt be a noisy place, but it is the rarest thing to find a really healthy child ill humored. When fun is conspicuous by its absence in the nursery the doctor is much more needed than the birch rod, and the mother and nurse who recognize the truth of this will see that it is much wiser to study how to keep the children well than to carry on a constant system of scolding and punishing them for their tempers and tantrums.

The lesson of how to keep them well, however, is not one to be learned in a day—far from it. It requires a lot of experience to know how to keep children well, and young mothers often have to buy this experience at a high price.

The very first lesson to learn—in fact, the A B C of the knowledge of how to keep sickness out of the nursery—is to recognize the part that feeding plays in childhood and the part that the stomach plays in the ailments of children.

The majority of people, for instance, rarely associate such ailments as convulsions, earache, toothache and headache with derangement of the stomach. They can understand that a pain in the stomach may follow the eating of indigestible food, but that a pain in the ear should come from such a cause would seem absurd to them, and yet it does.

Convulsions are more often caused by indigestible curd in the stomach of an infant than by anything else. The fact is that in early childhood there is an intense sympathy between the nerves of the stomach and those of the brain and head generally. Irritate the first and one or more of the others resent the irritation and show their resentment by pain of one kind or another.

But when this point is recognized there is another difficulty to face—the choosing of the right kind of food for the individual child.

It is not so difficult a matter, but it is one that requires some care and thought, for—mark this—you cannot lay down any cut and dried "rule of thumb" set of directions for feeding children that will suit all children alike.

"What is one man's meat is another man's poison" holds good with regard to children even more than with grown men and women. I knew a boy of ten who always complained that apple dumplings gave him earache. Every one laughed at him. It seemed to his family the wildest fantasy that the eating of an apple dumpling could be followed by an ache in the ear. They never dreamed that there might be any sympathy between the nerves of the two organs.

In later life the boy became very deaf. No doubt his ear was a weak part of his anatomy and resented more quickly than any other spot in his economy the irritation set up in his digestive organs. For other children apple dumplings was an excellent form of nourishment, but not for him.

The mother who would keep her children well must therefore pay some regard to the special requirements of each individual child.

SMART SEPARATE COAT

THE NEW SAILOR SUIT

CHECKED costumes for children are having an immense vogue this season. Not only are the girls being gowned in smart little tailored suits of shop-herd checks, but the small boys are sporting natty sailor suits of the same fabric. Fashion seldom takes economy into her account, but in the present instance of checked materials for children's costumes she has unwittingly achieved this point, and for good wearing qualities every mother in the land will give the palm to checker-board effects. The modish little suit for a girl of ten or twelve to be seen among the illustrations is of green and white check serge, which is rather more unusual, as far as the color scheme is concerned, than the many other combinations. The skirt is made with groups of three plaits alternating with plain panels the same width as the plaits. The coat is of the present fashionable length—that is, reaching a trifle above the knee line. It is smilting and fastens with imitation jade buttons. Drawn work collar and cuffs of cream colored scrim make a becoming finish for this neat little jacket. A word in passing about coat lengths. They vary in the small girl's model, just as they do in those of grownup girls' coats, from hip length to a drop that may be distinctly called three-quarter, but, whatever the length, a long, narrow opening of the front of the coat is a feature everywhere. The only variation from type is found in the smallest of reverts.

The long separate coat pictured is one of the most useful wraps a girl can have in her wardrobe. It comes in handy for automobilizing to protect the dainty linen or gingham gown from dust and is the proper weight for protection when the breezes blow at the seashore or in the mountains. And for cool days at home this coat will be found just the thing. The shawl collar of moire silk is a smart feature on

Latest Flying Costume for Women

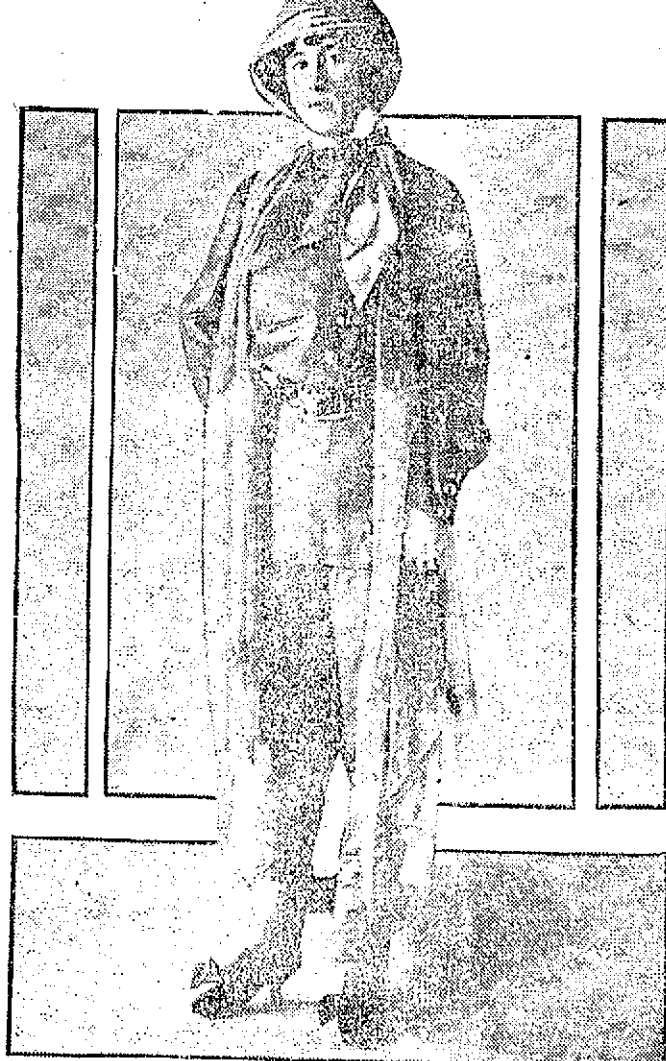

THE costume which is sure to be taken up by women aviators is composed of a skirt with very full trousers which may be converted into a walking or automobile skirt. The coat is high necked, and the blouse is held snugly at the waist with a patent leather belt. The material is broadcloth in a serviceable shade of mole color.

The aeroplane figure, too, is the fashion, and the pupils are put through a course of gymnastic exercises that would make any but a hardened athlete shrink.

lonable one of the hour, and classes are in progress in New York city to acquire this silhouette.

The woman who is conducting a class of this kind went through a special course of instruction in Paris. She admits it took her six months of the hardest work to gain the consciousness of tall, slim and graceful appearance that is now her best advertisement. Chin straps, rubber jackets and patent tips for tapering the ends of the fingers are among the mechanical instruments over each finger and are put on with a spring attachment. Lovely, long tapering fingers are supposed to result from a slightly application of these tips.

"The woman who 'files' will be interested in knowing that her hair may be curled by electricity and keep its wave for six months. Weather does not affect this manufactured curl, nor shampoo either. All one wants to acquire the curl is a large amount of vanity, lots of patience and a good fat check.

Spring Candies

Maple Sugar Makes the Most Delicious Bonbons

REAL maple sugar is such a delicious sweet in itself that it seems like painting the lily to boil it down with cream and nuts or to turn it into a fondant, but those who want to do so may find the following recipes useful:

For a maple fondant take three cups of maple sirup, two of cane sugar and half a teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Boil this mixture until it forms a thread an inch long when dipped from a spoon. Then pour it into a buttered pan and let it stand for twenty minutes. At the end of this time beat it with a fork until it thickens. Turn the mass out on a buttered platter and treat it like ordinary fondant, then use in any way desired. Balls of the fondant may be pressed between halves of nuts or rolled in fresh grated cocoanut or squares of it may be dipped in melted chocolate.

Maple Bonbons.—This delicious sweet calls for two big cups of broken maple sugar and a scant cupful of rich milk or cream boiled together until a little hardens when stirred in a cold saucer. When this stage is reached add some chopped nut meats, butter-nuts or pecan nuts preferred, and pour the mixture into buttered pans after beating until it begins to thicken. When cold cut into squares. This also makes a nice cake filling if spread over cake before it becomes too hard.

Beat one cupful of maple sirup and one egg together. Add one scant cupful of soft cream, one-half teaspoonful of ginger, a level teaspoonful of soda, a saltspoonful of salt and two and one-half cups of flour. Beat altogether thoroughly and bake in a rather cool oven.

Boil a pint of milk in a double boiler. Mix three beaten egg yolks with a cupful of milk, then stir into the hot milk. Melt a cupful and a half of maple sugar or take the sirup, add to the thickened milk and take from the fire. Add a pint of rich cream and when cool freeze.

NEW USE FOR PAJAMAS.

In a family where the mother and daughters live alone the housekeeper has a fashion of donning pajamas while preparing breakfast and doing her morning work.

"I do not like the garments to sleep in," she says, "but for wear around the house they are ideal. There is nothing to catch dirt and no danger from flaring cloth catching in the fire, and, in fact, I move more freely than when encumbered with skirts and other paraphernalia of usual clothing."

This woman's idea certainly has much to recommend it, for certain pajamas are preferable to kimonos to work in.

Pajamas are easily made, and nearly all pattern companies put out the patterns, or they may be purchased ready to wear at reasonable prices. So pajamas let it be for working clothes about the house.

NOVEL COCARDES FOR HATS.

The flat cocarde, or rosette of flowers, is a favorite trimming on the season's hats; but, as a rule, it lacks originality, and one soon wearies of tightly packed button roses or rosettes with violets as a "surround" or a halo of them over green leaves.

These cocardecos are much smarter when something else is used, and an enterprising milliner has supplied this deficiency. She has evolved a stunning toque in dull green crin, just the shade of watercress, and has trimmed it with a cluster of golden water lilies and their hard, round buds, with a circle of watercress.

Another and more remarkable creation is a hat of pale, coarse nut brown straw with a clump of unripe hazelnuts just turning and green and brown hazel twigs and buds—no leaves. Still another cocarde on one of her productions—a big hat this time—was formed of clover, white on the outside, then palest mauve, then pink, then corolla in the center. It looked wonderfully well on the large black shape, with no other trimming than a scarf of chantilly lace.

USES FOR LEMONS.

No family should be without lemons. Their uses are almost too many for enumeration.

The juice of a lemon in hot water taken on awakening in the morning is an excellent liver corrective and for stout women is better than any anti-fat medicine ever invented.

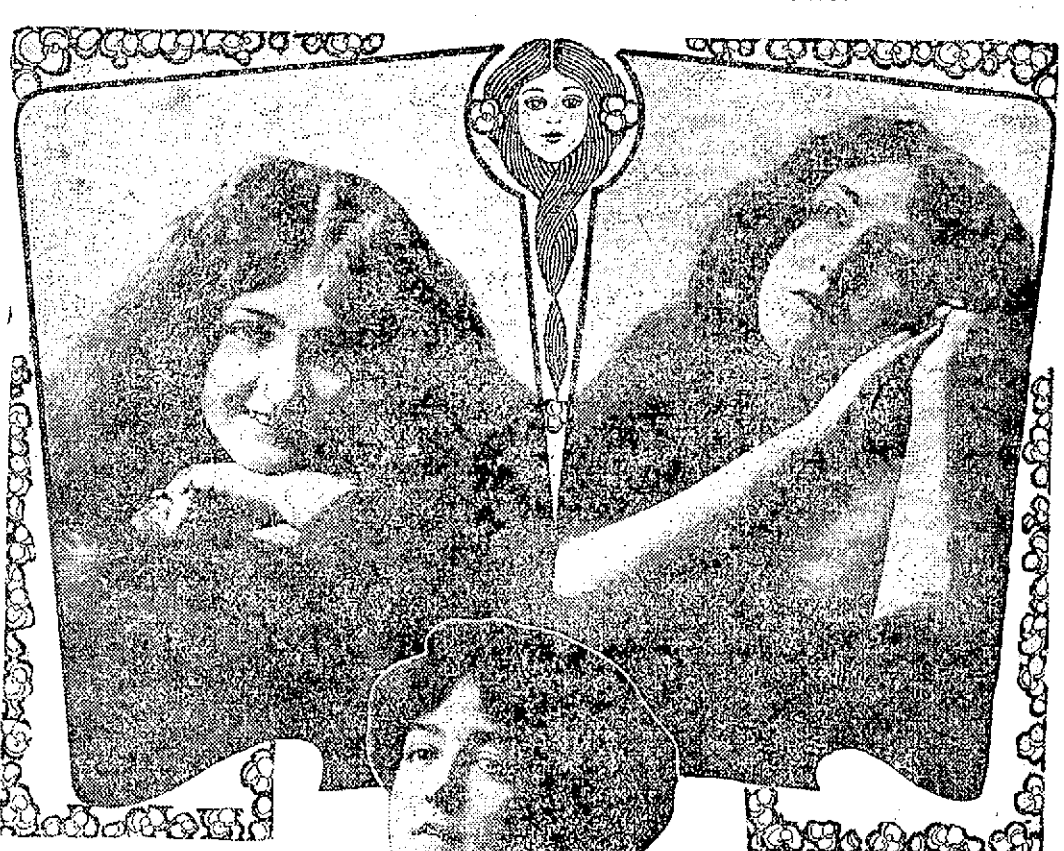

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

Nothing more elaborate or expensive than time and air is needed to remove kerosene oil from a carpet where it has been accidentally spilled. Wipe up all that can be removed that way. Then open the window, allow time, and Mother Nature will do the rest.

For colored garments the best starch is the old fashioned flour starch. To give it the right luster and keep it from sticking just before taking from the fire drop a small piece of paraffin into it and stir until dissolved.

Bernice Allen's Wonderful Hair

IN the chorus of every musical comedy there is a dainty specimen of femininity dubbed by the profession "the littlest girl."

In the new musical production, "A Skylark," which is likely to run all summer at a Broadway theater in New York city, Bernice Allen is "the littlest girl."

This small lady, a veritable pocket edition of Venus, is only four feet eleven inches high, but the most wonderful thing about Miss Allen is that she has a head of hair measuring several inches longer than her dainty self.

Women who have to purloin an odd dime here and there from their household expenses, pin money and salaries, to accumulate enough shillings to purchase swirl braids, puffs and curls for the new coiffure will certainly envy this fortunate girl her wealth of tresses.

But, true to her prerogative of womanly perversity, Bernice Allen looks upon her wealth of hair as a bother and petulantly refers to her five feet of magnificently fine and glossy brown hair as "the worry of her life."

When asked what hair tonics, lotions and revivifiers she used to promote this remarkable hairdo display Miss Allen at last remarked, "Why, like Topsy, it 'jes' grewed." And grow it surely did into a garment which, when unconfined, enveloped the tiny chorus girl in a covering of wonderful brown nuance.

The following are Miss Allen's rules for the care of her hair:

First.—Brush your hair night and morning with a long bristle brush with ample space between.

Second.—Wash your hair not often—than once every four weeks, using the best quality of castile soap. Dry the hair thoroughly in the old fashioned way, avoiding electric fans and heated air, both of which tend to dry up the oil ducts at the roots.

Third.—Give your hair plenty of sunshine.

Fourth.—Avoid doing your hair up tightly and never use sharply pointed hairpins.

Fifth.—When retiring arrange your hair in two loose braids.

Sixth.—Massage the scalp with the finger tips very gently for ten minutes before doing it up for the night.

STOCKHOLM, May 7.—The Roosevelt family arrived here today and were received at the railroad station by Prince Wilhelm, who drove with them to the palace, where they became the guests of the prince and princess in the absence of King Gustav V, who is in the south of France. United States Minister Graves, the staff of the American legation, the premier and other members of the Swedish cabinet were also at the station to receive the American guests. An immense crowd cheered as the train drew in. A choir stationed on the platform sang "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," and the Swedish national anthem.

JURY OUT LATE

Sealed Verdict Coming in Howard Case

Lights burning in the court house late last night indicated that the jury in the case of Howard vs. Boston & Northern was still battling over the proposition before it. The case went to the jury at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. A sealed verdict will be reported on Monday. The jury sent in a sealed verdict sometime after 10 o'clock last night and was liberated.

Berdes vs. T. & S.

The case of J. J. Berdes vs. Tremont & Suffolk mills was heard yesterday. Trull and Wier, for the plaintiff, Berdes sued to recover for the loss of a finger.

It is claimed that he was not properly instructed as to the danger of working around machinery of this kind, and also that he was illegally employed, being under 14 years of age, and for that reason the defendant company owned him a duty which it would not owe to the plaintiff.

At the close of the boy's testimony the jury was excused from the court room while the counsel argued on points of law. Mr. Dunbar contended that a violation of the statute, relating to the employment of children under 14, was the cause of negligence. It does not give the plaintiff any remedy, and therefore a verdict for the defendant should be ordered on the second count. He also argued, on the first count, that the evidence showed that the boy, at the time of the accident, was not engaged in working, but was standing leaning against the machine with his hands behind his back, and his hand was caught in the moving gear; and that it could not be maintained that he was put to work on a dangerous machine—or in a dangerous place—without proper instruction.

The court ordered a verdict for the defendant on both counts, and the case will go to the supreme court.

This was the second time that the case has been before the court. On the first trial Judge White ordered a verdict for the plaintiff, but the case was not reported because the counsel could not agree on the form of the report.

Desjardins vs. Lowell Textile Co.

The case of Adelard Desjardins vs. the Lowell Textile Co. was heard in the afternoon. Albert S. Howard and D. J. Donahue for the plaintiff, Desjardins, Rogers and Spalding for the defense.

The plaintiff asks damages for injuries received while employed by the defendant company. On the day of the accident, June 7, 1909, he was assisting in moving a machine, on rollers, and that through the negligence of a person who was exercising the duties of a superintendent, the machine fell upon his hand and he was severely injured.

The Short List

On the short list for next week are the following cases:

Desjardins vs. Lowell Textile Co. (assigned for May 3).

Blaine vs. City of Everett, (assigned for May 4).

Holland vs. Senares (assigned for May 5).

NEW WAGE SCHEDULE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 7.—The wage adjustment on the New York Central railroad will give the yardmen on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad an increase of about three cents an hour. At the time the schedule was adopted on the latter road it was agreed that if the New York Central road was called upon to pay a higher scale for yardmen, the New Haven road's men would benefit thereby.

Many of the track repair men here did not report for work yesterday, owing to the existence of a disagreement over their working hours.

BOY A HERO

HE JUMPED INTO RIVER TO SAVE COMPANION

SAGO, May 7.—Paul Grace, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Grace, who will be five years old today, owes his life to the activity of a playmate, Robert King, aged eight, and to the screams of Hazel Hooper, aged seven.

The youngsters were playing in a boat on the banks of the Saco river, when the Grace boy lost his balance and fell into the water. The King boy jumped into the water, which was two feet deep, and reaching out seized his playmate by one of his feet. He was not strong enough to drag the Grace boy from the water, and the Hooper girl screamed for help. Mill men heard her cries and rescued the boy.

BIG INCREASE

IN DEPOSITS AT LOWELL INSTITUTION FOR SAVINGS

The annual meeting of the trustees of the Lowell Institution for Savings was held yesterday morning at the bank building on Shattuck street.

Mr. H. R. Fletcher, who has audited the books of the institution for the past four years, has finished his examination and his report was presented at this meeting. This audit is made according to law, and proves that the accounts of the bank are correct and without a single correction or addition to be made.

The treasurer, Edward B. Carney, presented his annual report, which showed that the bank is exceedingly prosperous. Its deposits are the largest in its history, and its surplus has correspondingly increased.

The dividend declared this morning was at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum.

Deposits from the branch banks which this institution maintains at Granville and Forge Village have more than doubled during the past year.

Nearly one-half a million dollars of mortgages have been added during the year.

An excellent portrait of the late treasurer, George J. Carney, painted by Mary Harte Wood, was formally accepted by the trustees yesterday morning, and a cordial welcome is extended to all who wish to see this portrait.

It is the continued aim of this bank to help the industrious, and it earnestly solicits applications for mortgages from all who contemplate owning property.
